Arnall To Seek 8,500 a Month Ask
Marion Smith Birth Certificates
For Regent Post

Marion Smith, prominent Atlanta attorney, who was ousted from the State Board of Regents by Governor Talmadge in his "purge" of that body, will probably be named chairman of the reorganized board when Governor-elect Ellis Arnall assumes office early in January.

Arnall, who is now attending a meeting in Memphis of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, seeking reinstatement of the state university's credits, suspended last year after a "purged" board of regents had fired two members of the university faculty, told the association he wanted to name Marion Smith as chairman of the board.

Arnall made it clear, however, that the restoration of credits of the colleges would be dependent on enactment by the legislature of measures he has proposed.

Since Georgia's general assembly will not convene until January, the 10 state institutions suspended by the association will not be readmitted to membership at this time, at least.

Upon emerging from a closed session with the association's executive committee of the commission on institutions of higher learning, Arnall said they would recommend to the association that a special committee be appointed and empowered to reinstate the colleges immediately after satisfactory legislation is enacted.

"It is now up to the members of the state legislature," he said, "and I know they will come through for the people."

The association, at its meeting a year ago, voted to suspend the Georgia institutions on the ground that Governor Eugene Talmadge was guilty of political interference in the dismissal of state educators.

Arnall has not publicly disclosed the details of his legislative proposals, but he has pledged to remove the Board of Regents from politics. Under his plan the Gov-

Nazis and Italians
Strive Desperately
To Retain Footholds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—An air struggle of an intensity unequalled since the Battle of Britain was reported raging over Tunisia tonight as Germans and Italians rushed in reinforcements by sea and air in a frantic bid to keep their footholds on the coastal rim and British, Americans and French drove spearheads forward to slice them into at least three pockets.

U. S. Subs Sink
Jap Destroyer,
3 Cargo Ships

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The virtually unsung heroes of America's Pacific fleet, the submariners who often stalk their quarry in Japan's closely guarded home waters, have sunk five more Japanese ships, including a destroyer, the Navy announced today, and damaged two others, one of which probably sank.

This bag of seven vessels raised to 148 the number of enemy ships announced as sunk or damaged by American undersea action in the Pacific since the war started. Naval officials said this total represented one of the greatest contributions made in the steady campaign of American forces to reduce Japan's ability to maintain her farflung supply lines in the western Pacific and the China sea.

The ships announced sunk in today's communiqué were a destroyer of unidentified class and size, a 9,000-ton tanker and three cargo ships of 8,000, 8,300 and 2,000 tons respectively. In addition a 12,000-ton cargo ship was damaged, and believed sunk, and a 6,000-ton cargo ship was damaged. The total sunk or damaged was 43,300 tons.

The communiqué dealt chiefly with the terse reports of the undersea operations, but also mentioned the fighting on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons, disclosing that both American artillery and fighter planes were supporting Army and Marine ground patrols in their campaign to clean up Jap outposts in the vicinity of our positions on the island.

Prior to issuance of the communiqué Secretary Knox told a press conference that United States submarines in the Pacific were "doing a swell job." He had been asked for comment on stories from Honolulu regarding the exploits of a submarine commanded by Lieutenant Commander Thomas B. Klakring, 37, of Annapolis.

His submarine was credited with sinking of enemy ships totaling 70,000 tons. He worked close in to the shores of Japan before losing his deadly torpedoes and on one occasion his officers and men were so near shore they could watch pony races.

War is spelled with a capital "W" by the whole family of C. L. Faulkner, who lives at 845 York avenue and is better known to his many friends as "Judge."

Six members of Mr. Faulkner's family are now in the service and he is a toolmaker in an Atlanta defense plant. He also worked in a defense plant in World War I and was engaged in similar activity during the Spanish-American War.

When he came to The Constitution yesterday to obtain his sixth Star of Honor, to wear in honor of a grandchild who has joined five of his children in the grim business of war, "Judge" Faulkner listed those loved ones for whom he proudly wears the stars, in the form of a "V-for-Victory" on the lapel of his coat.

Tubby Walton
Hurt as Storm
Whips Airport

At least three persons were severely injured in a freak thunderstorm, accompanied by high winds and hail, which struck suddenly at the Municipal Airport yesterday afternoon, badly damaging several grounded planes and ripping apart hangars.

One of the injured was Tubby Walton, widely known sports figure and business man, who was knocked down by a heavy hangar door that was torn off a building 50 feet away. He sustained a head laceration, but was not believed to be critically hurt.

Part of the same door struck Cecil Gillam, a flight instructor, who was standing near Walton, but did not injure him seriously.

Guard is Injured
Jessie A. Erisendine, a guard at the Delta Air Lines, suffered a hip injury when the structure in which he was standing collapsed. He was taken to an Atlanta hospital.

No planes were in the air when the storm struck, officials said. However, Clarence W. Ludwig, operator of flying schools at Euftalia, Ala., and Tampa, Fla., had taxied his plane on the runway and was preparing to take off when the winds broke.

By gunning the motor of his ship and keeping it headed into the wind, Ludwig was able to keep the plane in a righted position.

2 Planes Torn Alose.
Two ships were torn alose from their moorings and blown across the field, officials said. One of them went sailing over a fence to land upright in the highway. Another plane blown over the fence and an embankment at the main entrance landed atop an auto.

Four planes and an automobile were damaged at a hangar belonging to Pete Clay, operator of a training school. Clay's planes were smashed as hangar doors were

Nazis Lose 50 Big Planes
Carrying Troops to VolgaRussian Armies
Still Advancing
In Central Area

By EDDY GILMORE.

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Dec. 2. (AP)—Russian airmen have destroyed 50 big German transport planes trying to supply Nazi troops fighting against a Red Army encirclement in the Stalingrad area and the Soviet armies continue to advance in that sector and on the central front west of Moscow, it was announced early today.

The regular noon communiqué yesterday and the midnight bulletin disclosed that approximately 6,000 more Germans had fallen on the snow-covered battlefields in an increasingly stubborn effort to hold up the Red army.

Twenty of the big trimotored Junkers planes were shot down and 30 were destroyed on the ground on Monday alone as the Germans attempted "to bring up supplies and war materials" in the area west of Stalingrad between the Volga and Don rivers, the midnight bulletin said. Soviet reports on air activities generally are a day late.

Reds Push Onward.
The Russians still were reported fighting on the eastern bank of the Don river in their efforts to close a trap on the Germans. Nazi railway communications to the rear already had been snapped by the Russians both northwest and southwest of Stalingrad.

The toll of 6,000 German dead yesterday raised the total to 161,700 for both the Stalingrad and central front sectors on the basis of previous special announcements. No special communiqué was issued last night on the continuing operations.

The Russians said their troops had occupied additional populated points in the Stalingrad area and between Velikie Luki and Rzhev on the central front after overcoming stubborn enemy resistance. Big stockpiles of equipment and other materials also were captured or destroyed in the methodical Soviet advance, the communiqué said.

Inside Stalingrad the fighting mostly was confined to artillery

Tales of Tragedy
Pour In to Fund

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

The stories are coming in—brief, unadorned reports of tragedy, the case histories of those families inside the prosperous Atlanta area, all of them victims of dire misfortune.

They are the stories of those families who will need the help of those who contribute to the Opportunity Fund, sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution in cooperation with the Family Welfare Society.

Thumb through the first five reports:

"The father is permanently disabled, with a condition which will get progressively worse..." A wife, two children!

"He was an unstable person, representing little that father and husband should be..." The separation left a wife, 28 years old, to support two children.

Another Mother
"The father soon became indifferent to the mother and finally hostile to two children."

"She won her fight against tuberculosis, but is left alone to support two children..."

"The father needs some practical help with rent and food to start him, after his battle with illness..." Four children!

There are the five of them. Four of them tell of a wife, abandoned to support her children. Those mothers are not looking for charity.

They'll not sit back and let someone else support them.

In most of these cases, all that is needed is about $30 or $35 a month, until the family can shift into gear and move along under its own power. The children will be saved from the plight and the uncertain future of being public charges. The mother, willing and eager to fight, will be given an incentive.

Real Chances
Here are real chances to save homes and families from separation and destruction.

In a few days, the stories of these cases will be told. A nickel, a dime, a quarter or a dollar from you can help to save those families that are tottering on the brink.

Through the years, many of them have been saved.

Tony Martin
Discharged as
'Unfit' for Navy

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—(AP) Tony Martin, former radio singer and more recently a chief specialist in the Navy, has been discharged as "unfit," the 12th Naval district said today. He was ordered to report to his draft board.

The order was effective yesterday noon.

The Navy said Martin, a principal witness in the recent court-martial of Lieutenant Commander Maurice N. Aroff, was notified of the action while on Treasure Island, and that he told naval officials he would report to his draft board in Beverly Hills immediately.

He was quoted as saying he did not "want to walk around in civilian clothes."

The Navy said the order was "not a dishonorable discharge and does not carry any degradation." It was issued by the Bureau of (Navy) Personnel in Washington.

Those who saw Martin leave the post said he was in tears.

Naval officials said Martin, who had been in charge of staging shows at the Treasure Island base in San Francisco bay, twice applied for sea duty.

Lieutenant Commander Aroff, whom a Navy spokesman in Washington recently said had been discharged from the service, was

Drivers 'Fill 'Er Up' As Gas Rationing Comes to West

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Three little words—"fill 'er up"—disappeared from the national language today as the west, still kicking and screaming, joined the east in gasoline rationing.

They'll probably be replaced by "gimme four" since four gallons likely will be the average purchase of the average motorist who yields his ration coupons with all the reluctance of the Russians giving up streets in Stalingrad.

Unlike the east, which was forced into gas rationing months ago by a shortage, the oil producing west started off with oil tanks full, not to mention a jug and a few beer bottles filled and tucked away in the garage—just for an emergency.

For instance, there was the driver in Dallas, Texas, who rolled up to a filling station and said "Fill 'er up—easy." The pump hand stopped on three pennies' worth.

Operators Busy.

Most filling station operators were as busy as a pretty USO club hostess right up to closing time last night.

At Winfield, Kan., one station manager, along about midnight sighed and pointed to a cigarette paper with some tobacco sprinkled on it lying on a table.

"I laid it there at noon and haven't had time to roll it yet," he explained. "How many, sir?"

In St. Louis automobile traffic fell off sharply the first day of rationing, but in Kansas City the decrease was slight. The Kansas City Transportation Company had all its buses and street cars ready for service, but the rush wasn't as great as anticipated.

Flow of Traffic.

However, traffic officials said that as the gasoline gauge pointers in automobiles neared zero the traffic flow would diminish.

The Southwest, where derricks rise in forests, hasn't yet entirely accepted rationing as final.

At Austin, Texas, Governor Coke Stevenson, who has opposed the move from the start, declared it wasn't yet too late to fight it and said "now is the time for congress to assert itself." Protests reaching him by mail, he said, reached a new high today.

And the Potter (Texas) county rationing board decided to let land owners have gasoline sufficient to look after their farms and ranches whether they have tenants or not. It was the same board which firmly declined to allow extra ration books to "nonessential" government agencies, including federal agencies.

Farmers Protest.

Farmers of the country, who had protested vehemently earlier, have been quieted by OPA Boss Leon Henderson's assurance that they would be given sufficient gasoline to keep their products moving to market. Truckers still are complaining, however, many contending they have not been allowed enough mileage fuel for essential needs.

Albuquerque, N. M., nearly had a riot among the more than 2,000 persons jammed before the ration board office trying to get basic or supplemental ration books. Latecomers tried to start a new line, tempers flared and police were called.

Little Tragedies.

The day was not without its little tragedies.

George D. Surprise, Kansas City, filled his tank full last night and went happily to bed. Today he discovered the tank had sprung a leak and every drop of gasoline had trickled out.

At Phoenix, J. W. Sissons reported at five minutes after midnight that thieves had taken a half-filled 50-gallon drum from his premises.

BEAUTY AND—ER—He's handsome, too! They blushing admit they'll never live it down, but Miss Vera Freeman, 18, and Bill Barnwell are nonetheless proud to be known as the best looking students at Atlanta Junior College. She was elected the most beautiful girl and he was elected the most handsome man in a poll sponsored by the school yearbook, "Gateway."

Miss Freeman Is Honored by Junior College

Sophomore Student Is Voted 'Most Beautiful Girl' in Contest.

Miss Vera Freeman, 18, was named the "most beautiful girl" and William Barnwell was elected the "most handsome man" in a poll held yesterday at the Atlanta Junior College.

Miss Freeman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Freeman, of 128 Peachtree Memorial drive, is secretary of Chi Rho Sigma sorority, a member of the Dramatic Club and the Inter-Fraternity Council, and a secretarial student. Barnwell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnwell, of Rumson road, was a member of SAE fraternity at the University of Georgia before he transferred to the junior college. Both are sophomores.

Other winners in the contest are Miss Mary Ann Linane, "Miss Junior College," Jack Ragsdale, "Mr. Junior College," Miss Sue Robinson, "Outstanding Freshman Girl," Bill Malone, "Outstanding Freshman Boy," Mildred Spears and Walter Stearns, "Most Scholastic Students," Catherine O'Callaghan, "Most Versatile," and Marjorie Blair, "Most Athletic."

Fulton, DeKalb Tin Can Pickup Is Set Today

Atlanta Trucks To Gather Metal Containers From Schools.

The first tin can pickup in Atlanta and Fulton county under a salvage program sponsored by the city and county Parent-Teacher Associations will be made today, Mrs. J. Y. Wilson, chairman of the Fulton P.T.A. Council, said yesterday.

The first pickup will be made in the city by sanitary department trucks and in the county by trucks from the Atlanta Beverage Association. It is expected to produce between three and four carloads of prepared tin cans.

Pickup centers will be all city and county elementary schools, she continued. School children have been working for a month in most neighborhoods, organizing into canvassing crews to secure discarded tins.

Each can must be thoroughly washed, the label removed, both ends removed and flattened, Mrs. Wilson said. They will be shipped to the Vulcan Detinning Company at Pittsburgh, there to be reprocessed and returned to the nation's tin stockpile.

Proceeds from the sale of tin cans will be used by the P.T.A. to sponsor a war program in the schools.

Regular pickups will be made at the elementary schools the first week in each month, Mrs. Wilson said.

Navy in Search For Engineers

Lieutenant Commander R. A. Sterzik, of the Navy's procurement office, is on a three-state search for men with experience as construction engineers or as assistant superintendents.

The construction experts may receive commissions as lieutenants, lieutenant (jg), ensign, warrant officer and petty officer ratings as a result of the new quotas set up by the Navy. Commander Sterzik is covering Florida, Georgia and South Carolina on this trip.

Navy Cadet Board To Remain Intact

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The Navy said today that the naval aviation cadet selection board at New Orleans will be continued intact.

The department reported yesterday in response to an inquiry that the board would be split up between Dallas and Atlanta, leaving only a naval recruiting officer to handle such functions in connection with aviation cadet selection as had to be discharged in New Orleans.

This report was described by a Navy press relations official as having been based on a plan which was all but adopted recently to split up the New Orleans board. However, the board has been assigned additional functions of a routine nature but requiring considerable time and work so that the proposal for splitting it up has been scrapped, the Navy said.

Nelson Victory Seen In Settlement of Scheduling Problem

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Victory for Donald M. Nelson was indicated tonight following President Roosevelt's disclosure that agreement had been reached between the War Production Board and the armed services on control over the scheduling of munitions production.

A spokesman for the WPB chairman said the agreement had not been reduced to writing and refused to confirm or deny a report that Nelson's lieutenant, WPB Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson, had been fully confirmed as the new boss of aircraft production.

However, a government official who declined to be quoted by name, said this key power had been assigned Wilson; and that production for all other munitions would be managed by the armed services as in the past, but under a delegation of authority from Wilson.

Scheduling Programs

The latter would supervise and review the scheduling programs of the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission, this source said, and apparently would have power to step in and take charge or alter procedure whenever any program seemed to him to be faltering.

In effect such a settlement would be an affirmation of civilian rather than military control over production scheduling. High importance is attached to scheduling, for some officials have blamed lags in plane deliveries on the fact that otherwise completed aircraft could not be delivered for lack of a propeller, engine, instrument or some other part; in other words, on a lack of balance in parts production.

Nelson's first attack on this situation was his announcement two weeks ago of a new Aircraft Production Board, headed by Wilson. This action, which asserted WPB's control over a field previously occupied by the armed services alone, was taken without concurrence of the Army or Navy, although Nelson had asked Secretaries Stimson and Knox for their approval.

President Roosevelt said today that the problem of overlapping authority between civilian and military control of production had been settled without slowing the flow of war supplies from the nation's factories.

Settlement Reached. There had been such a problem, he said at a press conference, although it was not so serious as some had made it out to be. It involved what he termed the fringes in between the War Production Board and the military supervision of production.

Mr. Roosevelt reminded reporters that he had previously told them how the problem would be settled—by telling those involved to get together in a room and not leave until a settlement was reached. That, the President said, had been done.

There wasn't much of a story in it, he continued, and yet there was a big story in it, too, for a settlement was reached, without impairing production rates in the slightest. The problem was settled before it reached into the factories, he added.

Some, he said, without going into details had endeavored to raise the controversy involved into a star of the first magnitude. Mr. Roosevelt plainly indicated that he never thought it a question of great importance.

It had been referred to in some quarters as a fundamental row as to whether there should be civilian or military control of production.

In particular the recent controversy had to do with drawing up production schedules. Some WPB officials were blaming faulty scheduling for much of the delay in the output of airplanes and other arms. By this they meant particularly that in some instances products otherwise complete were held up for the lack of a few fittings, which proper scheduling would have had on the spot at the time needed.

U.S. '43 Rubber Output Seen as 1,000,000 Tons

Nation Will Be 'Out of the Woods Next Year,' Says Steagall.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A statement that the production rate of synthetic rubber would reach "something like" 1,000,000 tons annually by the end of 1943 was attributed to Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones today as nation-wide rationing of gasoline went into effect to save tires.

Jones' estimate—considerably higher than goals previously discussed—was disclosed by Chairman Steagall, Democrat, Alabama, after an executive session of the House Committee on Banking and Currency.

Steagall said the government now had a rubber stockpile of between 600,000 and 700,000 tons, and added: "This is my personal opinion—I think that we ought to be pretty well out of the woods as far as rubber is concerned by the middle of next year."

Later, Steagall said that he based this remark on figures he received from various sources, not solely on testimony before the committee today.

Jones Outlines Need.
Just how far the expanded production of synthetic rubber, if realized, would go toward meeting the rubber shortage obviously would be dependent upon the needs of the military. There have been estimates that the nation's needs in normal times amount to nearly 700,000 tons.

Meanwhile, the banking committee swiftly and unanimously approved a measure increasing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's loan authority by an additional $5,000,000,000.

Jones, behind closed doors, outlined the RFC's need, but declined after the session to specify the uses to which the additional loans would be put beyond saying that they would be "entirely for war purposes."

However, in view of his reference to the rubber situation made public by Steagall, it appeared that some of the money would be used to develop the synthetic rubber program.

See Demonstration.
Jones will appear before the Senate Banking Committee tomorrow.

While the House Banking Committee was meeting, a House Interstate Commerce subcommittee was concluding a 10-day study of the rubber and oil situation with a practical demonstration on how the average automobile tire may be used without an inner tube.

John M. McGay and Victor P. Barnett, of Tulsa, Okla., who put on the demonstration, estimated that the 135,000,000 inner tubes now in use on passenger cars and the 50,000,000 in stock could be turned into the government rubber pile and would furnish a quarter million tons of "excellent reclaimable rubber."

The Interstate Subcommittee began its inquiry during protests from a strong congressional bloc—chiefly composed of lawmakers from western oil producing states—that the nationwide gasoline rationing order was unnecessary at this time.

Without success, the bloc sought a delay of at least 30 days to permit a more detailed study of the problem.

FOR ACTION CALL JACKSON 5000

CAMPBELL COAL CO.

SHE RECRUITED HERSELF!—Lena Carter (left), clerk-typist at the WAAC recruiting office here, became so engrossed in her work that she finally recruited herself and has gone to the new WAAC camp at Daytona Beach, Fla. Auxiliary Claudia Couch, of Newman, stopped by on her way back to Fort Des Moines, Iowa, after a furlough, to answer a few of the new recruit's questions about Army life.

Clerk-Typist Succumbs to Smart Uniform

Lena Carter Joins WAAC; Headed for Florida Training Center.

Typing out applications in the WAAC recruiting office here and watching the stream of smart WAAC uniforms that came daily to her office proved too much for Lena Carter. She succumbed to the lure of Army life, and recruited herself.

Lena left last week in the first contingent headed for the new WAAC training center at Daytona Beach, Fla., after being sworn in at Fort McPherson.

"The oath is very impressive," she said after completing her induction. "And when I was through I've never been happier. The decision was ended, and I was in the Army." She smiled as she added, "I beat my brother in, too. He was sworn in at Fort McPherson a few days later."

A graduate of Commercial High school in 1936, Lena is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Carter, of 1040 Longley avenue.

Alles Tighten Death Trap on Enemy at Buna

MacArthur Reports Four Japanese Destroyers on Way to Scene.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Wednesday, Dec. 2. (AP)—Americans and Australians slowly drew tighter their ring of men and steel around the entrapped Japs at Buna in northeast New Guinea and the enemy, aware of the growing peril, is sending four destroyers in an apparent reinforcement attempt, the high command said today.

Having divided the Jap forces at Buna and Gona by penetrating to the north coast 900 yards from Gona, "our ground forces are slowly contracting their grip on the enemy," General MacArthur's noon communiqué stated.

Even as the advancing Allies pushed the Japs closer to the sea, supporting planes pressed home deadly strafing and bombing attacks. An enemy divebomber and two fighters were shot down.

The approach of destroyers has been a signal in the past to watch for attempts at reinforcements. Similar attempts already have cost the Japs a light cruiser and four destroyers certainly sunk and three others probably sunk as a result of Allied aerial bombings.

Darlan Assumes Authority as Chief Of French Africa

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Admiral Darlan, acting with the assertion that Marshal Petain is a prisoner of the Germans at Vichy, has taken over authority as chief of state in French Africa, it was announced tonight from Morocco.

The Morocco radio said Darlan, who is co-operating with the Allies, had set up an imperial council to advise him. This was announced after Darlan had conferred with Auguste Nogues and Pierre Boisson, governors general in Morocco and French West Africa, which embraces Dakar.

Fighting French quarters in London, who still regard Darlan as a traitor to France because of his Vichy record, said they assumed that Darlan's assumption of his new powers was in an effort to strengthen his political position.

Presumably, it was his intention to set up a fulfilled French government in North and West Africa.

Rioting in France
As the one-time political heir to Marshal Petain, Darlan has contended all along that he was acting in the name of the marshal, who was unable to speak independently from Vichy.

Marshal Petain, however, according to Vichy broadcasts, has stripped Darlan of his authority as a minister and as his presumptive successor.

The announcement from Morocco came as evidence grew of internal revolt in France, where rioting by hundreds of sullen workers at Toulon compelled authorities to drop their attempt to reopen the naval arsenal that was closed last Friday when French sailors scuttled the main fleet.

But orders, presumably from German officials, brought about reopening of Toulon's huge La Seyne shipyards, which were still enveloped by a thick pall of smoke from the hulks of the fleet and blasted oil tanks.

Vichy Denies Rumors.
The Vichy radio also described how French laborers first rioted yesterday when German conquerors tried to make the arsenal resume activity, leading Vice Admiral Marquis to broadcast a notice that the gates "will be closed until further notice."

Later, the Vichy radio broadcast an official Vichy communiqué denying the "most dangerous rumors and most erroneous interpretations" on events at Toulon, which, it said, were being spread by foreign propaganda.

The communiqué, without giving an official Vichy version, said these "rumors absolutely without foundation" concerned the scuttling of the fleet and the number of officers and men killed at Toulon.

The Berlin radio yesterday reported that an official Vichy statement on the events at Toulon was "expected" soon.

Topic for Commons.
One London source expressed belief that Darlan planned to use the vital West African port, Dakar, as a club over the Allies and predicted that its naval base would be neutralized until Darlan's purposes were achieved.

The thorny subject of Darlan came up in the house of commons again today when Foreign Minister Eden announced that a statement on the military and political situation in North Africa having reference to the admiral would be made in secret session at the earliest opportunity.

Meanwhile, Admiral Rene Platon addressed an appeal to French troops in Africa to offer passive resistance to their chiefs—presumably Darlan and General Giraud—who, tempted by offers received from the enemy, have betrayed us.

Far more moving was another

Boston Clamps Dancing Ban On 1,161 Night Spots

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A ban was clamped tonight on all amusement and dancing in 1,161 Boston night clubs, hotels and restaurants as an aftermath of the Cocoanut Grove fire disaster, while separate city and state probes produced testimony that the night club was of "tinderbox construction" and that flames had raced like lightning through draperies that "looked like gauze."

While scores of funerals of fire victims were held throughout New England, there were these developments:

1. The death toll of the Saturday night blaze was revised downward by the Boston committee on public safety from 484 to 460, but a number known to be dead were not named on the committee's list and unofficial compilations indicated the final cost in human life would approach 500.

Dancing Banned
Governor Leverett, Saltontall told members of the Boston Licensing Commission to "act first and let someone question your authority later." The commission promptly banned dancing and floor shows in all night spots until they could be reinspected.

By early evening about 50 night clubs and restaurants in which dancing was held had closed completely, with padlocks on many of the doors and police posted nearby.

2. Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle opened a separate inquiry into the fire, under the direction of the state's attorney general, and announced that all testimony would be private "in view of the fact that criminal prosecutions may result."

3. Doyle accepted a letter from a prominent Bostonian, written in January, 1939, to the Cocoanut Grove employes saying: "There are several things you ought to give particular attention to. Your exits are very bad. You have a tinderbox construction. It should be in absolute conformity with the building rules."

Sailor Unscrewed Bulb.
A Boston fire department inquest heard for the first time a statement that a sailor had unscrewed an electric light bulb in the basement lounge of the club, where the fire started, so that he could "mug his girl."

Stanley Tomaszewski, 16-year-old bar boy, who lighted a match to replace the bulb and thus started the conflagration, was held under custody in a Boston hotel, so that, Police Commissioner Joseph Timilty said, he could be "protected from having his story tampered with to save the civic rights of the dead people."

7. James Welanski, acting manager of the club and brother of one of the principal owners, told the fire department inquest that they had kept fireproofed things that needed such attention. In response to a question from Fire Commissioner William A. Reilly, as to whether the decorations were fireproof, he said "they generally fireproof these things," but added he was merely giving "supposition."

Victim Testifies.
The first witness before the inquest was Maurice Levy, of Boston. He had lost his wife in the fire. Unshaven and drawn, he testified that a man at the next table to his was "bothered" by a light in the ceiling and had unscrewed the bulb.

Levy said the bar boy had lighted a match to replace it and this had ignited a paper palm tree. The flames leaped to the ceiling decorations, which he said "looked like gauze."

Like gauze, he said, that they were ten feet behind him when he and his wife raced for the stairs, but were "ten feet ahead of us" before they started to leave the basement.

He testified the club was "packed" and in response to a question said it was "overcrowded."

One Man's Opinion
John J. Kearney, of Boston, executive secretary of the Bartenders and Waiters' Union, said the fire, which he said was caused by the bar boy who put it back.

"This is an opinion," Commissioner Reilly asked.

"This is from information given me by union members," Kearney replied.

Informed by Reilly that the investigation was limited to the testimony of those who had been present, Kearney said:

"From my own experience in the Melody room, there is subdued light. Isn't it interesting to you that in this subdued room a sailor stood up and turned out the light so that he could mug with his girl?"

Horror Is Described.
Witness after witness described the horror that followed.

Levy said a door to the street was on his right when he and his wife reached the top of the stairs, but that the panic-stricken crowd was surging to the left toward the ballroom. He saw a screaming woman with her hair burning off. His wife was pulled from his side. The man behind him as he went out the door, he said, was "all in flames and he did not get out."

Welanski was questioned at length by Commissioner Reilly, and testified he had been pushed outside the building in a rush of people.

Q—"Would you say there was panic?"
A—"Yes, sir."

Q—"What did you do when you got outside?"
A—"I went yelling for the fire engine. When I got back—I don't know how long it was because every minute was hours—the glass windows on the Broadway side imploded, and I saw someone impaled on the glass that was broken."

Nathan Greer, of Santa Fe, N. M., a Harvard student, said he

Double Rites For Marine Hero and Wife

Captain, Mrs. Goodpasture Were Victims of Boston Fire.

Double funeral services for Captain W. C. Goodpasture, of the United States Marines, and his wife, who died in the Cocoanut Grove holocaust at Boston, Saturday night, will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Trinity church, in Columbia, S. C.

Captain Goodpasture, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Goodpasture, of 723 Morosgo drive, escaped from the night club, but returned several times to rescue others trapped in the building.

On one of his return trips, Captain Goodpasture was apparently overcome by smoke and collapsed.

The body of his wife, the former Miss Mary Daly, of Columbia, was identified Monday by her wedding ring.

The Dunbar Funeral Home, of Columbia, is in charge of funeral plans.

went to the club with James Jenkins, another student, from Fort Bragg, N. C., and Kathleen B. O'Neil, of Brookline, and Ann McArdle, of Lawrence. Jenkins and Miss O'Neil are dead.

"The girls went into the cloak room after their coats," Greer testified. "I thought I would get mine and then realized the fire was only a matter of seconds. It looked to me as though wind swept that fire up. You just didn't have time to think."

"Can you describe the blaze?" Reilly asked.

"It was like a ball of fire," Greer said.

Pushes at Door.
"Kathy (Kathleen O'Neil) had gone to the washroom and told other girls there was a small fire," Greer continued. "I went up and opened the door and yelled, 'Get the hell out of here.' When I turned around there were four or five people jammed in the doorway. They were pushing on both sides of the (revolving) door."

"I ran to the door and put everything I had into it trying to get it open. I know Kathy must have been right behind me. I know she was there. In the struggle, someone grabbed my watch."

"As I went out the door, a man on my right rear was enveloped in flames. A girl died in front of me, near the door. I took off my coat so that if anyone else came out in flames I could smother the fire. But nobody came out."

"When they found Kathy's body, she was clasping my watch in her hand."

Jones Was on Tour To Sell War Bonds

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Cowboy Movie Star Buck Jones, a veteran of World War I, was on a war bond selling tour to aid the men of World War II, when the Cocoanut Grove fire cost him his life.

Suffering severe burns about the head and body, Buck appeared to be holding his own for a time after being admitted to a hospital, but he took a turn for the worse yesterday and died a few hours later.

He had been in another hospital Saturday afternoon—a few hours before the fire—the Children's hospital, where he entertained the young folk who had seen his films. He had arrived in Boston Friday.

He had dropped into the Cocoanut Grove as the guest of a number of motion picture distributors who handled his films.

A. T. & T. Denies Charges by FCC

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company denied today allegations that its long distance telephone rates were burdensome to the public and asked the Federal Communications Commission to dismiss an investigatory proceeding, or at least postpone the hearing until next April 1.

The FCC ordered the A. T. & T. on November 21 to show cause at a hearing December 16 why its long distance toll rates and other charges should not be substantially reduced. Today was the deadline for a reply to the order.

In requesting a delay in the proceeding—a motion made separately from its answer—the A. T. & T. said there was no emergency which required a reduction in interstate telephone rates, but that on the contrary the emergency required that nothing be done to stimulate business.

Merchant Is Charged With Buying Sugar Units

P. B. Middlebrooks, merchant of Farmington, Ga., has been charged with buying up unused sugar ration stamps and using them for excessive sales of sugar to individual customers, Paul Webb, OPA enforcement attorney, said yesterday.

A federal warrant covering the charge was issued yesterday in Athens by United States Commissioner Ted Middlebrooks.

WILL SING FOR "VICTORY BALL"—Phyllis Myles, blond vocalist with Frankie Masters' band, will be one of the feature attractions when he plays for the Junior League's "Bonds for Victory" ball at the Municipal Auditorium Wednesday night.

Junior League Sells $875,000 War Bonds in 10-Day Period

A total of $875,000 worth of bonds sold in the past 10 days is the record of the Atlanta Junior League, which is sponsoring the Bonds for Victory Ball Monday night at the municipal auditorium.

Well over a million dollars in bond sales will be realized before December 7, Mrs. Errol J. Hay Jr., League president says.

"The purpose of the ball is to inspire Atlantans to go all-out for Uncle Sam on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor, and to help Atlanta meet its share of Georgia's $6,000,000 December War Bond quota."

The box office, at 66 Broad street, is doing a rush business selling bonds of denominations from $25 upwards, entitling the purchaser to seats in the dress circle or boxes, but Mrs. Hay pointed out that general admission tickets are only $1.25 and 50 cents for service men. The proceeds from the general admission sales will be invested by the League in War Bonds.

One of the highlights of the evening will be the auction of the football used in the Tech-Georgia game and the jersey which Frankie Sinkwich wore. L. W. "Chip" Roberts, who will be in Atlanta for the occasion, will auction off the ball, which Sinkwich autographed.

Army to Accept FCC Orders Nurses Who Limit on New Are Married Phone Lines

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today limited all new construction of telephone and telephone lines to those which serve "an essential military need or a vital public need which cannot otherwise be met."

Acting at the request of the War Communications, the FCC issued an order requiring any application for construction of new lines to show military or vital public need in order to receive consideration.

Such applications must be supported, the commission said, by a statement of need signed by the Army's chief signal officer, the director of naval communications or the Coast Guard's director of communications; an order of requisition signed by the authorized representative of a governmental department to be served by the line, or a complete statement of facts and circumstances to demonstrate the necessity of the proposed line.

The commission said that such documents need not be submitted for pending applications unless specifically requested.

Sergeant Rufus W. Youngblood was awarded the Purple Heart yesterday, for having been wounded in action, according to a dispatch from London last night.

Sergeant Youngblood has been in England as a bombardier in the Army Air Forces and was wounded in combat on November 8, according to a telegram the War Department sent his mother, Mrs. R. W. Youngblood, of 550 Culberson avenue, S.W.

Enlisting in the Air Corps in December, 1941, just before his 18th birthday, Sergeant Youngblood received his basic training at Keesler Field, Miss., and finished at Walla Walla, Wash., before being sent overseas.

A graduate of Tech High school, Sergeant Youngblood worked for the telephone company in Atlanta in civilian life.

Another Atlanta, Staff Sergeant Charles D. Wright, of 10 11th street, also was awarded the Purple Heart yesterday.

J. RALPH BROOK HOME ON FURLOUGH
J. Ralph Brook, seaman first class, is now in Atlanta on a 20-day furlough after a year's naval duty which has included convoy duty in the Pacific.

Seaman Brook received his boot training at Norfolk, Va., and spent 20 weeks at the Naval Radio school in Washington, D.C. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brook, of 1015 Katherine drive, and a graduate of Tech High school. Before he enlisted he was employed here with a transfer company.

SERGEANT RAMSEY NOW IN HAWAII
Sergeant John G. Ramsey, son of Mrs. Callie H. Ramsey, of Toccoa, Ga., is now serving with the Army in Hawaii.

Inducted at Fort McPherson in June, 1941, Sergeant Ramsey was sent to Fort Sill, Okla., for his basic training, but since he was over 28 years of age, he was dismissed and placed on the reserve list in October of that year. After the war, Sergeant Ramsey returned to active duty and was stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla., before going to Hawaii.

Sergeant Ramsey's brother, Glenn T. Ramsey, is in the Navy, now serving somewhere in the Atlantic.

LEWIS TO FINISH GUN TURRET SCHOOL
Jerry L. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lewis, of 931 Woodland avenue, will be graduated from the power-operated gun turret school at Lowry Field, Texas, Saturday.

Lewis entered the Army Air Forces in August, and spent seven weeks in basic training at St. Petersburg, Fla. He has been a student at Lowry's advanced armament school for the past eight weeks, and upon graduation will be assigned to a bomber combat squadron for gun turret maintenance and aerial gunnery work.

Before entering the Air Force, Lewis was employed by the Frigidaire Company.

DOUTHIT SERVING IN ENGLAND
Staff Sergeant William Earl Douthit, formerly of Ellijay, Ga., is now serving somewhere in England with a bombardier group, according to word received recently by his parents.

Sergeant Douthit entered the Air Corps in February, 1942, and received his training at Barksdale Field, La.; Tindall Field, Fla., and at Greiner Field, N. H. Before entering the service, Sergeant Douthit was employed with a trucking company. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Douthit, of Ellijay, Ga.

Four men stationed at the headquarters of the Fourth Service Command have recently been promoted to the grade of warrant officer. They are William E. Auehumutey, John Albert Federspiel, John Wallace Prather and Robert Anthony Brandewie.

Building Permits Soar to $110,590

Construction by the Southeastern Pipe Line Company of a garage and warehouse during November sent figures for building permits in Fulton county, outside the incorporated areas, up to $110,590 for the month, Building Inspector Frank Eaves reported yesterday.

Permits issued in October amounted to only $11,125, and for November, 1941, the figure was $395,595.

In Atlanta, figures for new construction dropped sharply from $877,460 issued in November, 1941, to $30,425 last month. Assistant Building Inspector W. A. Screws said. Announcement of these figures was the last official act of Screws before he left the city's employment yesterday for active service with the Navy.

Farmers Must Present Release To Be Enlisted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Selective service headquarters has instructed local draft boards, a spokesman said today, not to release for voluntary enlistment in the Army or Navy any men granted deferment as essential farm workers until a replacement has been obtained or trained. The spokesman, desiring not to be identified, said the Army and Navy had agreed not to accept essential farm workers unless they had releases from their draft boards.

U. S. Bombers Assault Jap-Occupied Islands

NEW DELHI, Dec. 1.—(P)—American heavy bombers flew hundreds of miles across the Bay of Bengal yesterday to assault the Japanese-occupied Andaman Islands for the first time since enemy warships there were dealt a punishing blow by flying fortresses on April 3.

Coupled with this heavy assault, made by daylight, was a fiery raid last night upon the docks and warehouses at Rangoon, the Burmese port.

One of the attacking bombers failed to return from the operations.

Rites at Thomasville For Lieutenant Wages

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 1.—Funeral services were held here Monday for Lieutenant Ozelle Wages, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Wages, who was killed Saturday in an automobile accident while en route from Camp Blanding to Fort McPherson.

Services were conducted at Baptist church by the Rev. T. F. Callaway, pastor of the church in which Miss Wages had been a member for many years. Assisting was an Army chaplain from Spence Field and present also was a military escort from that camp. Interment was in Wilson cemetery, near New Shiloh church on the Moultrie road.

Honorary pallbearers included members of the nursing staff of Archbold hospital in this city.

Young Leaders Seen For Youthful Soldiers

BLYTHERVILLE, Ark., Dec. 1.—(P)—Youthful soldiers—the 18 and 19-year-olds—will have youthful leaders, the service records of the Blytheville Army Air field indicate.

Here, where cadets take the final weeks of training prior to receiving commissions, 60 youths have yet to reach the voting age, although they carry the chevrons and responsibilities of noncommissioned officers.

One Georgian is among these, Sergeant Joe B. Allen, of Columbus, who has been assigned to the duties of crew chief at the field.

Sweeping Post-War Security Program Offered Britain

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The shape of a post-war Britain freed from want and insecurity by a revolutionary social security plan was laid before the nation today by the government planning committee of Sir William Beveridge.

In many ways, both in the nature of benefits it envisages, and the range of population it would shelter from birth to death, it is the outline of the most sweeping plan for government-sponsored social security ever set forth.

Issuance of the Beveridge commission report—to which opposition lines were reported forming even before its contents were known—still leaves the plan a blueprint rather than a reality.

Tide of Ideas.

It is but one aspect of a broad tide of new ideas about community responsibility in future planning in Britain, how ever, and the house of commons already has been exhorted to give it an early and sympathetic hearing so that it can be adopted as soon as the war is over.

The 300,000-word report recommended the creation of a new ministry of social security to administer the manifold benefits under the plan and the billions of dollars which the government, employers and employees would pool annually for pensions, unemployment and health insurance, death benefits and birth and marriage bounties.

Sir William himself acknowledged that the program was "in some ways a revolution," but he said it was a "British revolution" with the people contributing, by their own preference, to a national insurance fund rather than taking a hand-out from the state.

Not all of the cost would be new. Beveridge said it would be a substitution, in large part, of a conscious security payment for an unconscious tribute to unemployment and disability.

New Program Cost.

In the first year the new program would cost about $2,700,000,000, of which the government would provide $1,404,000,000, employers $548,000,000 and insured persons $776,000,000. "Other sources," primarily interest on which the report did not give details, would provide the balance of the revenue.

After 20 years, when the plan was in high gear, it would cost an additional $644,000,000 annually, but both employers and workers would contribute slightly less and the government would make up the difference.

Virtually all workers would be covered in the plan, including agricultural, civil service, bank, insurance, railroad and nonmanual workers earning more than $1,680 who are exempt from the present insurance system.

It would equalize unemployment and disability benefits except for industrial ailments where it is recognized that workers are in hazardous occupations and deserve more when stricken.

Disability Benefit.—It would raise the industrial disability benefit rate to a scale comparable with that in the United States.

It would alter the system of compulsory health insurance, now under private companies paying varying benefits, so that all who paid the same would receive the same.

These are some of the principal benefits under the program: Old-Age Pensions—Double the present, from $4 to $8 a week for a typical man and wife.

Marriage Payments—Up to $40 to working women at their marriage to compensate for their changed benefit status.

Health Insurance—Extend limited medical service to comprehensive medical care for every member of workers' families.

Typical Family.—In a typical family of four, an ailing or unemployed father would get $11.20 a week indefinitely instead of the brief period of payments ranging down to $1.50 which were in force before the war began.

The increased pensions still would average less than in the United States, but would be distributed more broadly and there are phases of the plan—such as the health insurance, marriage, maternity and funeral grants—for which there are no counterparts in the United States.

In the United States, social security payments are based on the individual's wages and the length of time he contributes. Here they would be unvarying payments.

Probably the most controversial recommendation in the report—one on which opposition began crystallizing beforehand—was the proposal to take over the work of private weekly-collection industrial insurance companies whose operating costs the commission regarded as unduly high.

Another Proposal.

Another was the proposal that workmen's compensation, a state matter in the United States, be handled here between individual employers and their workers—be nationalized with central fund to which all employers and employees would contribute.

It urged recognition of housewives as career women in a separate insurance category with a carefully devised benefit program "putting a premium on marriage instead of penalizing it."

Where workmen now contribute 20 to 55 cents a week to unemployment and health insurance and pension funds through a complicated plan of cards and stamps, they would make one weekly contribution for all. It would range from 30 cents for unemployed 16-year-olds to 65 cents for employed workers over 20.

Employers' contributions would range from 40 to 65 cents for each worker.

Sample Family.

A sample family of four, for instance, would have these increases in security: Unemployment insurance—From $7.00 for 26 weeks to $11.20 indefinitely.

Nonindustrial disability—From $5.60 for 26 weeks to $11.20 indefinitely.

Old-age pension—From $4 a week to $8 a week.

Marriage (for working women)—Formerly nothing, now up to $40.

Funeral allowance—Formerly nothing, now from $24 for infants to $30 for adults.

Industrial disability—Formerly half-pay up to $7 weekly plus $1.60 for two children, now $11.20 for 13 weeks, then two-thirds pay up to $15.20.

The funeral grant was designed to replace voluntary, private industrial insurance under which virtually everyone in Britain is covered but, according to the report, "at excessive expense."

Increased Allowances.—Beveridge said the increased allowances for maternity and children were in the hope of stemming Britain's falling birth rate under which the population is not reproducing its own numbers.

Britain, which led the industrial revolution, and has strong labor unions, has had workmen's compensation since 1906, compulsory health insurance since 1912, unemployment insurance since 1920 and old-age pensions since 1925.

But they have been separately managed by scattered agencies ranging from private insurance companies to county sheriffs.

The Beveridge committee included 12 representatives of government departments and branches—among whom were three women—appointed in June, 1941, to devise its now-submitted plan for integrating the tangle of services and to improve the social security set-up in keeping with the new ideas which have been sweeping England concerning social responsibility after the war.

Even before its plan was made public, the committee had stirred wider public interest, speculation and controversy probably than any domestic topic since 1939.

THEY'LL NEVER FLY FOR AXIS AGAIN—When the British Eighth Army swept past Sollum in pursuit of Marshal Rommel's routed Africa Corps, it found what had become of his air support. These ME110's were strewn across the Sollum airport by bombs from British and U. S. bombers. This is a U. S. Army photograph.

air force and American Fortresses flying from Britain, said the struggle now taking place in North Africa was unequalled in intensity since the assault on England in 1940-41.

Round-the-clock Allied assaults were reported in some dispatches to have made Axis air bases at Bizerte virtually untenable, with Hitler forced to withdraw some of his planes to operating bases in Sicily.

Hitler Sends Reserves.—But the Germans were trying desperately to halt the devastating series of raids, and American airmen flying twin-engine P-38 Lightnings (Lockheed fighters) encountered Germany's fastest high-altitude fighters, Focke-Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109-G's for the first time over North Africa.

Hitler was bringing in air reserves from western Europe and the Russian front to stem the tide. One German plane shot down had been flying over Stalingrad less than two weeks ago.

The Germans and Italians also were rushing in reinforcements by sea and air for the 20,000 combat troops and thousands of communications and air force men whom authoritative quarters estimated were already in Tunisia, and were busy trying to consolidate bridgeheads on the east coast at Sfax and Gabes.

The British First Army, with American armored forces, now making up about a fourth of its strength, exerted heavy pressure beyond Djedeida, 12 miles west of Tunis, where a wedge was being driven between Tunis and Bizerte, and at Mateur, 28 miles south of Bizerte, in a direct attack on the naval base.

Frequent Clashes.—Farther to the south, where the French, under General Giraud, and Americans were driving from central Tunisia to the coast between Sfax and Sfax, Italians were attempting to reorganize new bridgeheads in order to have a place to fight from should they be pushed out of the northern tip of Tunisia.

It was this thrust which the Moroccan radio said had reached the coast. In the mountains between Djedeida and Mateur there were frequent clashes with Axis armored patrols and in southeastern Tunisia French patrols were reported to have destroyed many Axis installations.

The Allied force, divided about half and half between Americans and British, pounded the four key coastal points night and day, the RAF taking the night trick and the Americans carrying on by day.

Major General Doolittle sent Flying Fortresses, light and medium bombers and twin-engine P-38 fighters into a continuous action. The Bizerte docks were smashed.

Leo Nahlik, Ace 'Gang Buster,' To Hunt Axis 'Mob' as Marine

By KEELER McCARTNEY. Leo Nahlik, ace Atlanta detective and for years the No. 1 Georgia "gang buster," will leave this week to begin the biggest game hunt of his career.

At 10 o'clock Friday morning, Nahlik will be sworn in as a United States Marine "buck private." Then he will head for the Marine "boot" camp at Parris Island, S. C.

When his training chores are completed, Detective Nahlik will be assigned the task along with thousands of other "devildogs" to stalk henchmen of three gangsters—identified throughout the world as Adolf, Hirohito and Benito. "Losing Nahlik will be a blow to the detective force," Detective Superintendent J. A. McKibben said last night. "But he feels that his country needs him."

F. D. R. Curious as to Congress' Action on Limiting Incomes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was curious to know what Congress would do about limiting incomes from investments and inheritances, now that salaries have been restricted by executive action to a gross of $67,200.

Earlier an informed source said the President would ask Congress next month to limit investment income to the same figure by taxation. Speaking at a press conference, the President declined to confirm this directly.

He did, however, point out that he made a similar recommendation last year. In addition he said that the country was vigorously criticizing the uneven situation of a ceiling on salaries, but none on investment incomes.

It was incorrect, he told the reporters, to refer to the restriction as a $25,000 limitation. That gave the impression, he said, that $25,000 was the gross figure, from which taxes would have to be paid. He suggested he might explain the question to the public in a radio speech. In any event, he said he planned such an address before January 1.

In connection with the salary question, he referred to the railroad situation in 1933. Many roads were on the brink of bankruptcy, he said, and the RFC was making them loans to tide them over for six months or a year. Jesse Jones, then chairman of the RFC, complained, he said, that the roads were paying unreasonably high salaries—some reaching $150,000 a year, and all averaging about $100,000.

Jones, the President continued, thought that in view of the financial condition of the lines, and in view of the fact that they were borrowing money from the government, these salaries were exorbitant. He proposed a limitation of $50,000 to be included in the terms of any railroad loans the RFC might make.

Immediate Result.—The immediate result was what the President called an awful howl from the railroad executives. Jones yielded to the point of a Growing Allied air power was exhibited in punishing raids on the Bizerte docks and sprawling naval base, during which four German and one Allied plane were shot down. Bases in Sicily were showered with explosives. A merchant ship was exploded near Pantellaria in the narrows. The Axis struck back at Bone, Allied supply base in eastern Algeria.

The German and Italian communiques both said the Allies were advancing in Tunisia. The enemy claimed prisoners. The Algiers radio said fighting was joined near Mateur, about 25 miles south of Bizerte and a railway junction.

Ankara reports said the Germans were moving 10,000 to 15,000 men a week into Greece to replace reinforcements sent to North Africa.

At least three more German planes were shot up at the Gabes airfield. Altogether five Allied planes were lost, including one P-38, a communique said, while six enemy planes were destroyed.

One of the American bombers over Gabes was shot down, but two P-38's in a spectacular rescue alighted and took off the crew of the wrecked craft.

Pressure in Bizerte.—The Allies were nearer than 12 miles to the capital and appeared to be encircling it. The railway to Bizerte, the northern naval base, already is cut. The wedge near the North African coast of the Mediterranean imperiled Bizerte from three sides and pressure was steadily tightened.

The battle for air supremacy saw the swiftly reinforced Allies gaining ascendancy and increasing the weight of bomb blows on Bizerte, Sicily and sealanes of the Mediterranean narrows. The Bizerte airfield was reported so freckled with bomb hits that it was virtually unusable.

At El Agheila at the eastern extremity of the African coast still held by the Axis, the British Eighth Army sent patrols probing at Marshal Rommel's narrow and deep defenses 400 miles east of Tripoli.

The Berlin radio said "very considerable reinforcements" of men and heavy armor had reached Rommel, but this appeared doubtful because British sea and air power ruled his supply route. General Montgomery seemed to be gathering great strength for an annihilating smash against the 60,000 battered enemy troops who lost most of their equipment in a 700-mile rout from Egypt.

Holds Consolidated.—The strategy in Tunisia appeared to be to trisect the 20,000 to 30,000 Germans and Italians stoutly entrenched in former French fortifications. Allied Headquarters gave no precise information of the progress of the First Army drive east of the rail junction of Djedeida, 12 miles from Tunis, but described the Allied positions as "satisfactory."

French forces south of the First Army consolidated their holds from Djedeida to Point du Fahs, 30 miles to the southwest on an inland railway.

Still farther south, French and Americans advanced in the Gabes-Sfax region. The Morocco radio said the object of this thrust was to cut enemy communications between Tunisia and Italian Tripoli, thus leaving the only escape means by sea or air.

As the liberated French mobilized under General Giraud, important conferences were afoot. Pierre Boisson, governor general of Dakar and French West Africa, conferred with Admiral Darlan, as did General Nogues, the Morocco commander, and Admiral Michel, chief of cabinet to Darlan. The subject was not disclosed.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 2, 1942.

On the Defensive

The truly important result of recent developments in the European theatre of war is that the Axis in that sector has been placed on the defensive in every theater of operations. For the first time since the war began in 1939, Hitler is definitely out of the offensive picture. Unless there is some unexpected and startling change, he must fight from now to the end with his back to the wall.

All around the perimeter of Hitler control, the Allied Nations are attacking. On the Russian front, in Africa and in the west, from the airfields of Britain, the ground, sea and air forces are striking hard blows at the foe.

Italy is in a bad state of jitter, justifiably so. The end of all Axis forces in North Africa is in sight. The strength of the United Nations forces in Africa is growing fast and, with control of the Mediterranean safely in the hands of the combined naval and air forces of Britain and the United States, it will not be long until invasion of the "soft underbelly" of Europe is undertaken—with excellent chances of success.

Meanwhile the Russians are driving the Nazi troops out of important portions of their winter line of defense. Unless Hitler can, somewhere, find new strength for his eastern lines, it would not be surprising to see full-scale disaster strike the Germans there.

And, all the time, the air onslaught from Britain continues, ever gaining in power and destructiveness. Hitler cannot afford to weaken himself on any front. In fact, he needs far greater strength than he has available on all.

We shall see, barring misfortune now dreamed, a steady tightening of the ring around Hitler, as the New Year comes and its months bring time for the exertion of our ever-growing strength. The noose is now all around Axis Europe, and it will grow tighter and tighter until, at the end, it chokes to death Hitler, his Nazis and all the hateful militaristic leaders of Germany, the brute of the nations.

—THE LONG, HARD PULL WINS!

When a Bully Squeals

And now, with the tables turned against them, the bullies of Berlin are squealing that bombing of cities and civilians is horrible, inhuman and altogether vile. Berlin radio has begun broadcasting reports that Pope Pius may soon make representations to all belligerents against this feature of modern war.

The Nazis have made a science of the lie. It is unnecessary to remind the civilized world of that fact. They have boasted that the lie is one of the weapons of their aggressive warfare, and they have scorned the truth as evidence of weakness.

Of all the lies even they have told, however, none has been more insultingly false than that made by the Berlin radio this week when it said "Britain had started the bombing of civilians."

What of Warsaw? What of Rotterdam? What of the unnumbered cities, towns and villages that were turned into piles of smoking rubble when the Germans were raping, without mercy, all the weaker nations within their reach?

What of the German planes that, swooping low, methodically swept throngs of helpless refugees with machinegun bullets? What of the tens of thousands of innocents who have died before Nazi firing squads. What of Lidice and the other little towns which have been wiped completely from the map?

Now, as the Axis grows weaker, as the Allied Nations daily gain new dominance of the skies, as German and Italian people taste the same horror they once sowed on others, they squeal and howl and plead for intervention.

How, now, do the Italians think upon those days when their airmen laughed as they dropped bombs upon pitiful Ethiopians and described the scenes of blood and death beneath them as "beautiful, like the opening of a rose."

It has been ever thus. While the bully was on top the suffering of his victims was only cause of amusement. Torture seems fun to the brutalized mind of Hitler and his kind, when they are the ones to administer the torture.

But, when the tables turn, when just retali-bution seeks them out, the erstwhile brutes become whining, squealing wretches.

Let them beg for mercy. We still hear, louder than their squeals, the voices of the dead, the voices of that vast host of innocent dead, killed by Hitler and his gang.

Revealing a Trend

Action of the Potter county, Texas, rationing board, in refusing additional gasoline rations to all state and federal agencies save those engaged in law enforcement, is indicative of a trend in public opinion which is apt to grow much stronger and more nearly universal.

This is public resentment at the ever-increasing numbers of governmental employees, attaches of this or that bureau or sub-agency, who are, in some cases, perfect illustrations of the worst evils possible under bureaucratic government.

The Potter county rationing board may or may not have been right in the stand it took. In all probability it was right in some cases, and wrong in others. But the fact remains the average man cannot understand why, even in time of war, it is necessary, in the first place, to support so many governmental employees from the public treasury and, in the second place, why the mere fact of federal employment should be considered sufficient cause for unlimited mileage rations and other special privileges.

Senator Byrd, of Virginia, has for many years been the leader of a congressional group which has fought, without letup, for greater economy in the administration of government. He has pointed out, by the record and by unchallenged statistics, that the nation could get along just as well with far fewer persons on the public pay roll. Since Pearl Harbor he has steadfastly advocated a curtailment in the cost of normal, routine government in order that there should be more money for the prosecution of the war.

No man can say, outside of the government itself, how many of the total of government employees, in all categories, are unnecessary. But there is a growing feeling all over the country that many bureaus have overloaded pay rolls and, unless something is done, voluntarily, to remedy the situation, the wave of public resentment will reach overwhelming proportions.

President Roosevelt himself has expressed disapproval of the habit of extending special benefits to men on the sole ground they are government employees. He did this about two weeks ago when he ordered that all deferments for military service granted on this ground should be withdrawn and the men reclassified.

If governmental employ is insufficient grounds for military deferment, it certainly should not be enough reason for use of unlimited motor mileage when everyone else is reduced to none but the most essential driving.

The result of the attitude of the Potter county ration board will be watched with interest all over the nation.

Lucky Prisoners

The sons of Italy are known far and wide as excellent tillers of the soil. They learned to squeeze every ounce of energy out of the good earth back home, where nothing digestible can be wasted in the endless struggle to provide three square meals every twenty-four hours.

So, when Italian prisoners of war were taken to England last spring, 10,000 of them were put into the fields to work. They are said to have sung "good music" as they worked, and their hatred for "perfidious Albion" quickly waned as they plowed and planted and harvested to the tune of three dollars per month as prisoners and eight dollars per week paid them for their services to local agricultural committees—about forty dollars per month altogether.

This kind of money amounted to something like a fortune to these thrifty Italian lads—so accustomed to whooping-things-up for Mussolini at a few cents a day or else—and they saved it and insisted on keeping it in a safe place; no place was considered quite as secure by most of them as British War Savings Certificates!

After all, the war wasn't going to last forever. When they went back home, they wanted something to show for their services in foreign lands—and their country's participation in the war—besides a fistful of paper lire and whatever their Axis partners forgot to take with them in their rush to get through the Brenner Pass.

Lucky prisoners of war they are and nothing else; and wise in their investments. They have reason to sing good music—good cause for a degree of optimism.

Georgia Editors Say:

LET'S ALL BE ACTIVE

(From The Lyons Progress.)

With the continued good news of our victories in the Pacific war theater, we all continue to feel our spirits rising with encouragement, and it makes us all look around to find something to do to further the cause.

With many of us in Lyons and Toombs county it might be that we are not in position to buy as many stamps and bonds as we feel we should, but there are many other things which we can and should do. There is something for us all in the way of contribution to the war effort.

The program of activity is so varied and so full that it fits itself into the talents of every man, woman and child in every section of our country; let's all be active in some of these endeavors.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

TOULON SCUTTLED WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Scuttling of the French fleet at Toulon has at least two aspects that are distinctly favorable to the Allied side. Obviously it would have been far more preferable for the ships to have fallen into our hands intact, but next to this it was equally important to see that the Germans did not get them. Combined with remnants of the Italian fleet, which long since has been chased into hiding by the British, the French war vessels would have enabled the Axis to seriously threaten the new freedom of action we are gaining in the Mediterranean by virtue of the North African developments.

If the initial reports coming largely from German-controlled sources may be trusted, this threat has now been definitely removed. Sinking of the 60-odd vessels stationed at Toulon removes a deep-seated anxiety that has hung heavily over the British admiralty ever since the fall of France more than two years ago. It naturally brought sighs of relief in Allied naval circles.

We need no longer be concerned with the possibility of the French collaborationists dealing us the final treacherous blow of delivering the fleet to the Nazis.

There is another more practical aspect of the scuttling that stands to benefit us materially. With Vichy dissolved and the Nazis occupying all of France, it was necessary for us and the British to keep powerful naval units stationed within striking distance at Gibraltar so long as the French vessels remained intact at Toulon. We had to be prepared for some sudden act of treachery which might result in the fleet making a dash to join forces with the Italians.

RELEASES ALLIED SHIPS The necessity for keeping that sort of a vigil is now kept British and American ships which had been held in the area for that emergency are now released for duty elsewhere. They will be extremely useful in the Pacific, in the Atlantic, and along the convoy routes of the world. Thus the scuttling has resulted in a positive advantage on our side.

Over and above these two factors, there is something exhilarating in the revelation that the downtrodden French still have enough fighting spirit left in them to resist the Germans as they did. The Toulon sinkings, greatest massed scuttling of warships since Scapa Flow, was achieved with a flash of glory reminiscent of France before she fell upon evil days. It offers more than a spark of hope for the future.

CHAPTER OF STUPIDITY The Toulon incident, however, marks a tragic end to one of the most blundering and inept periods in all French history. How ineptly officials could have performed more stupidly in handling the fleet is inconceivable. It is as sorry a chapter as will be found in the annals of France.

Upon the fall of France a solemn obligation rested on the French government to deliver the fleet to the British, who had been their allies in a war of self-preservation against Hitler. The American ambassador at Paris threw the weight of this country's influence behind the demands of the British that the fleet be turned over to them.

It was even urged upon the tottering French government that it order the fleet away to some safe neutral port, where it would be out of reach of Hitler. The British would have accepted this compromise as the next best thing. Anything to safeguard against its falling into Hitler's hands.

TRADING POINT But the panicky French officials, seeking to save as much of their own skins as possible, refused all overtures and insisted on keeping the fleet at Toulon as a trading point with the Germans. They were able to trade on it with limited success for two years. It is probably responsible for Hitler's not violating the Vichy armistice before he did. He dared not for fear of the fleet being delivered to the British.

But the fleet would have been an even more valuable trading point if it had been held at some far removed neutral port—in inaccessible to Hitler's bombers, which means that he would have had no facilities for preventing its delivery to the British if the French had ordered.

TRAPPED At Toulon he was able to throw a submarine net around the fleet, making it extremely difficult to escape had they tried. He thus was able to cancel off in large degree the most important part of the fleet's trading value. If he couldn't get it himself, the British weren't likely to.

That, plus the French colonies in North Africa, was the only thing Vichy had to trade in keeping the Germans from occupying the whole of France. We eliminated one when we moved into Algiers and Morocco. The other was lost for all time to them when they were forced to scuttle the fleet after the Germans moved into Toulon.

As it is, senile old Marshal Petain and his arch collaborationist Laval haven't so much as a shiny franc left to trade on. Henceforth Field Marshal von Rundstedt will be the Nazi overlord of France.

SYMPATHY FOR PEOPLE There is still a great sympathy among the Allied nations for the mass of French people who have been borne down under the Nazi yoke for these past two and a half years, but it is tempered somewhat by the supine stupidity of its official leaders. It may cost the French dearly in the final peace.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Pitiful Ignorance.

No more perfect illustration of the blind ignorance of the Nazis keep their people can be found than the interview, published in The Constitution of yesterday, between Lowell Bennett and an 18-year-old Nazi parachutist, captured somewhere in Tunisia.

The fanatic faith of young N a z i d o m in Adolf Hitler and the whole gospel of German invincibility is something that will have to be smashed, utterly, if the world is ever to know security from war.

"Do you still think you can win the war?" asked Correspondent Bennett.

"Certainly we'll win," answered the youngster.

"How about RAF and American bombing attacks?"

"Here Field Marshal Goering will take care of England as soon as he finishes Russia."

"What about America?"

"The Americans made a great mistake to come on the side of the English. Roosevelt is a Jew and wants to save England but he won't succeed."

"Don't you think America's too big to beat? What about our production?"

"Our submarines are sinking all your ships. You have too many different kinds of people in America. You can't win because you're not united like us. Japan will take care of America."

And so on, ad nauseum. Did you ever read or hear a more pitiful lot of false rot?

How blind these young Nazis must be.

How did we get there.

We get there.

Surely he remembers the failure of Goering and his Luftwaffe to "take care of England," even before the Russian campaign demanded the greater part of the Nazi air force.

This kid and millions like him, in Germany, have a rude awakening coming. All we can pray is that we, on our side, will not listen too quickly to Nazi pleas for armistice. They will try it, never doubt, when the going gets tough for them. An arranged peace will then be their sole hope.

I hope they won't get it, not until after German people and the German nation, as a whole, has known at least equal horror as the peoples of Poland and Czechoslovakia and Greece and Belgium and all the rest have known at the hands of Germany.

For those like this Nazi prisoner will have to be educated anew before they can fit for the society of decent peoples. And the only form of education which is effective with their kind, is the education contained in bombs and bullets and on the points of bayonets.

It may seem cruel, but it will truly be merciful to the whole world if this time we do not sound the order to cease firing until the aggressor nations, Germany and Japan, are taught such a lesson, are rendered so impotent for all time, that they can never again menace the peace and security of other folks.

As for Italy, that jackal partner need not be considered. If the Italian people get out of the war now, if they get rid of Mussolini and his gang, I for one have hopes. For the Italians, as a race, were always right decent folk. They were led astray by Benny the Bum, to be sure, but it should not be too hard to re-educate them into fitness for decent society.

If they don't get rid of Mussolini and get out of the war, well, they will learn the lessons the falling bombs teach quite soon. That is all.

Will He Now Learn the Truth.

I hope that young Nazi prisoner, wherever he goes, will be granted opportunity, and accept that opportunity, to read British and American newspapers, so he may learn the truth about the way the war is going, how it is destined to end.

Truth, after all, can always dispel error and, in time, even the youngest may cease to be one of the gullible and learn, with all

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Another Instalment NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—To continue to wind up, for the time being at least, the portrayal of the despotic character of the mighty subgovernment of the United States exercised by the unions under the political patronage of the New Deal party, let me cite again from the remarks of Phil Murray, president of the CIO, at the recent Boston convention of that body. Mr. Murray has already called his old friend, John L. Lewis, a betrayer, a tyrant and "an established national prevaricator," because they fell out in a rivalry for power and money, and now we find him saying this:

"Those are the things that are going on—organized despotism, the devices used by Hitler in the occupied countries of Europe are being resorted to in 20 puppet districts (of the United Mine Workers) over which Lewis has complete domination."

But it was ever thus. It was the same Lewis, the same dictator of the same methods, whom Murray and all the rest of the CIO praised and defended when they were working together. Lewis has not changed. He is too old to change.

In the same convention Alan Haywood, another CIO boss and, like Murray, an outcast from the Mine Workers in the same controversy, said:

"Among those unions that I helped to build up was a man whom John Lewis referred to as 'Red Mike Quill.' He is the same Mike Quill that he was in 1937 when Lewis first met him."

Quill's Job Mike Quill runs the New York Transport Workers Union which consistently follows the Communist party line, although it includes many Irish Catholics and others who bitterly oppose this course.

Mr. Murray was talking about "organized despotism, the devices used by Hitler" in reproach of Lewis.

But on the night of last April 23, this same Quill, who was present in good standing in the CIO convention as Murray spoke, organized and led a completely lawless CIO raid on the office of District 50 of the United Mine Workers in New York. Quill had a spy planted in the office of District 50, a member of the United Office and Professional Workers' Union of the CIO, which also follows the Communist line, who tipped them off to the secrets of their employer, Mr. Lewis. On the basis of information so obtained Quill learned that anti-Communist membership in his union were negotiating with District 50 of the Mine Workers to start a rival transport union.

In union morality this is treason or dual unionism, and Quill arranged a raid on the office of District 50 in collusion with agents of Marshall Field.

It Was Reported The morning after the raid, Field's paper related that Quill and 250 of his followers "broke up a secret meeting" of District 50 and found there three of Quill's anti-Communist rivals in the transport union.

"Only Quill's pleas prevented violence when his men burst in on what they termed an attempted sellout," Field's paper reported. "They expressed their feelings by tearing from the walls a photograph of Lewis and stamping it underfoot."

Quill and three other officials of the transport union and three of Field's agents hid in a moving van parked in front of Lewis' office until the members of Quill's union entered the building. Quill had gathered 250 men at his union hall, and when he saw the anti-Communist streetcar men go into Lewis' headquarters he phoned them to hurry over. Quill and his official group and Field's representatives rushed into Lewis' headquarters and soon Quill's mob began to arrive.

Field's editorial attitude was that this perfectly legitimate conduct, although it was plainly, as Murray said of some of Lewis' activities, one of the "devices used by Hitler" and was set in motion originally by a betrayal of Field's confidential office employee of the Lewis organization, who belonged to another of Murray's unions. This confidential employee of Lewis had resigned or pretended to resign from the power-line Office and Professional Workers' Union for the duration of his employment by Lewis, but admitted that she communicated information to Quill obtained under the seal of confidence and trust.

Nevertheless, in denouncing Lewis for his use of Hitlerian devices, Murray ignored similar conduct by Quill and Quill, who had opposed the imperialistic war until Hitler attacked Russia, now made warlike patriotic speech from the floor in Boston.

Withdraws Description I regret and withdraw a recent characterization of the S. S. Evangeline as "a terrible old tub." ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

I SAW IT Travel and a football game delayed this piece. It has to do with your scrap iron and your scrap rubber. I saw it. Or some of it. Coming out of St. Louis last week we passed by a rubber reclaiming plant.

There were mountains of old tires stacked about the plant. There were huge piles of rubber innertubes. There were freight cars unloading more old tires.

So, your old rubber is getting to the plants and is coming out as rubber to be used for tires, recaps and for other rubber materials necessary to the war and civilian economy. The rubber reclaiming plant looked new. It was not large. Yet it was supplied with large amounts of scrap rubber. One had to multiply that plant by the dozen or more of them on the job to visualize just how many mountains of old tires have already reached the plants.

The railroad yards, all of them showed some scrap moving. The answer to that is that the steel production has increased, when there were fears, three months ago, it might decline. So, the scrap is getting there, too.

The railroad yards in the great industrial sections showed something else, as well... an explanation of why gasoline must be rationed.

It does not explain why the eastern states, including Georgia, should have been rationed and the rest of the nation left out until yesterday.

That was wrong and not according to the American way of making national sacrifice national in scope. But rationing was necessary to save rubber—because about all the rubber there is in this country is in the tires on civilian and commercial cars and trucks. We've got to conserve it to keep the nation on wheels.

There was, and is, still another reason.

THE CHIEF REASON It is my opinion this latter reason was the chief reason for rationing the eastern states.

I was told that about 1,200,000 barrels of fuel oil daily are needed to keep the industrial plants of the east going at top production. That is exclusive of gasoline.

The railroads are doing a miracle job of transporting almost 900,000 barrels daily. Trucks and tankers, are getting the rest of it there.

Gasoline is being brought along by pipe lines. Some of it comes by tanker and truck and railroad. But those transportation units are being used largely for fuel oil.

Since the largest and most essential industries, steel and all the associated airplane and tank plants about Detroit, Pittsburgh and the various industrial areas of Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey and associated states, require huge amounts of oil for their furnaces, running 24 hours per day, the government simply let the rest of the east suffer while all transportation was called on to deliver fuel.

Just why the government didn't frankly say so, or do the more sensible thing, and ration the whole nation at the same time, isn't known. It would have been fairer and less productive of discontent and confusion.

But, be that as it may, I am convinced that the need for fuel oil was the chief reason, with rubber secondary but no less vital.

Had there been enough pipe lines the crisis in the east would have come when it did. Had not the railroads done a magnificent job the crisis would have been more acute. There might have been failure.

INDUSTRIAL MIGHT Here in the south we do not have great regions in Illinois and the other industrial states.

Here in the south we see occasional trains of tank cars.

Across Illinois I counted a dozen each day. There were great long trains of nothing but tank cars, crawling across the nation's industrial areas, taking in the fuel which has become so vital a part of our industrial production.

There was coal, too, train loads of it, pulling out of the coal regions of Kentucky and Illinois.

Visitors from the coastal states comment on what they call the apathy of the rest of the nation. It isn't apathy. It is just that the impact of the war effort is less.

Georgia's coast about Savannah and Brunswick, is more aware of the war than Atlanta or Macon. Those cities have seen the sea men brought in from torpedoed ships. They have seen sunken ships, with part of the superstructure out of the surface of the sea. They have seen the dead.

In the great industrial sections one sees the almost unbelievable areas and scope of production.

These things bring the war closer.

In states where the only signs of war are less coffee, less gas, bond sales, and so on, it is impossible to feel the war as do those areas where they have seen something of it; where they have heard the guns, or seen the great factories empty their thousands of workers thrice daily; where they have seen the great lines of production send a plane into the air every 30 minutes.

At any rate, what I started out to say was that your scrap rubber and metal are getting there. I saw that much.

What Good Is the Cure If It Gives You Another Disease That Is Fatal?

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Representative Maas, speaking to a radio audience, reminded us of an obvious truth that we dare not continue to overlook.

He said the Japs have already won the war.

"The only question that remains is whether we are able to win it back."

The Japs have won all they set out to win. They have won riches beyond calculation. Their gains, if held, will make them the dominant power in the world.

When they attacked us at Pearl Harbor, our people were almost unanimous in hoping that all of our resources would be used to attack and destroy them.

Mr. Roosevelt decided it would be wiser to destroy Hitler first. With Germany out of the way, Japan would be a "set-up."

We have scattered our forces all over the world. We have divided our newly produced weapons among many allies, yet failed to supply the Chinese, who are the only ones free to concentrate their whole force against the Japs.

Naval authorities have tricked and fooled the people by concealing our losses, some of them inexcusable and shameful, and by magnifying our little successes. They have even reported serious defeats as victories, and thus given people the utterly false belief that we are winning.

We are not winning, and every day that passes lessens our hope of winning.

If the Japs are given another year in which to consolidate and exploit their gains, it will be almost impossible to defeat them. They will have all the oil they need, inexhaustible resources of other raw materials, and all the man power they can use. They will be masters of Asia, and the future of white men will be at their mercy.

Dudley Glass

Commissioners of Evans county advertise in the Clayton Enterprise a $50 reward for evidence leading to conviction of an operator of a slot machine. Evans is a rural county and not a nest of night clubs and floor shows, but every county has its juke joints and slot machines.

Being seven or maybe eleven—different kinds of a sinner, it does not behoove me to preach a sermon against slot machines, popularly termed one-armed bandits.

But slot machines rankle in my breast, as the saying goes. Rather, in my pocket book.

A woman very dear to me who depends upon me for a household allowance has a character beyond reproach. She does not drink—except when champagne is flowing, which has not occurred since before Pearl Harbor. She does not buy fur coats and charge them to me. She brews good coffee, she is a past mistress with chicken pie. She does not try to teach me the new system of bridge bidding. Take it all in all, she's not so bad—except about the dog jumping on the furniture. Yet he hasn't gnawed a square inch out of the upholstery since he was a six-month pup.

But she is a gambler at heart. Back in the boom days of Florida the only thing that restrained her from buying a hundred acres of swamp land was that we couldn't make a ten-dollar payment. I shudder to think what might have happened if we found ourselves in a joint with a roulette wheel.

So far we have avoided roulette, baccarat, the bird-cage game and craps. But frequently, on summer and autumn excursions we have run across a slot machine or machines—ranging from the nickel variety to those which demand dimes, quarters and halves. When I discover this I am likely to suffer acute indigestion and ask that I be taken somewhere and nursed carefully. But it never works.

You Can't Beat It

As a scientist and higher mathematician I have endeavored patiently to demonstrate that 70 per cent for the machine and 30 per cent to the player is not conducive to acquiring wealth—for the player.

That makes no difference. She will shove nickels or dimes into the machine, pull the crank, look disappointed and try again. If the machine showers down 11 coins she goes all along the assemblage boasting of what's she's won—and declining to state how many coins she has pushed into the slot.

Many's the time she has boasted of her vast winnings. And when the place closed up and we were returning to camp, cabin or hotel I'd ask her to lend me a quarter. But she has never had it. And I'd be forced to write a check and explain distinctly to the landlady that it wouldn't be worth a darn until after my next pay day—next coming Friday.

I am not registering a complaint. If she gets a kick out of watching the pears and peaches and plums and whatnot spinning around that's all right. She says she does. So that's that.

I am no gambler at heart. I like a small poker game between friends—that is, we start out as friends—for small stakes. In poker I have an opportunity to exercise what is technically known as my mind. The fact that I lose is not because of my bad judgment but because some darn fool across the table drew to an inside straight and made it.

But, getting back to the Evans county war on slot machines, I'm for the war.

No Game for Kids

Atlanta, as far as I know, is not infested with them. Where they lurk anybody.

I know of several clubs which have installed them for the pleasure of their members. I have heard of one which has all its expenses paid by these one-armed bandits—and devotes the surplus to various charities.

That doesn't disturb me. Those folk can afford their fun, if they call it that. I'm too Scotch to go up against that percentage.

What I don't want to see—and I've seen them in a number of towns—is slot machines easily accessible to school children and poor folks in general.

Nobody can beat the machines—with that percentage—sometimes it is worse. And the kid goes without his sandwich or milk for lunch.

That doesn't cause me any loss of sleep. A sucker is born a sucker, grows up a sucker, will always be a sucker. You can't cure him.

As long as they keep the sucker games out of easy reach of the kids the gamblers can go on trimming the wise guys as they like. They won't trim me.

Does anybody know of a little 10-cent limit poker game I might horn into? I'm kinder honing for some action—up to a couple or three bucks.

2 Atlantans, Savannah Interned in Foreign Countries.

Three more Georgians are now interned in foreign countries, according to official government announcement, two of them, Rodrick Davidson Scattergood and Charles Hood, being Atlantans. The third is John F. Monteverde, of Savannah.

Hood, who was known as "Red" during his football-playing days at Tech High and Georgia Tech, was a paratrooper on the American plane that went down in Spanish Morocco recently, and is now, according to a government telegram to his family, "in excellent health and well cared for by the Spanish authorities."

Scattergood, a radioman second class, is the son of Mrs. Blanche Sara Beegle, who is employed with the Remington Arms Company here. He has been interned in Germany.

Monteverde, of the U. S. Merchant Marine, and husband of Mrs. Georgia Monteverde, of Savannah, has been interned by Germany at Frontslag.

Turned down by the Air Corps because he was color blind, young Hood was determined to see some sort of action in the air, according to his mother, Mrs. C. W. Hood, and signed up for parachute training a year and a half ago. After finishing his training at Fort Benning and Fort Bragg, N. C., he was sent to England last June.

"I missed being home on my birthday, Mother," Hood wrote just before taking off on the flight that ended in his internment, "but there's a war going on and I want to be in it." The Hoods live at 2003 McLendon avenue.

Material Control Plan

To Be Explained Today

Atlanta industrialists today will hear a complete explanation of the new controlled materials plan of the War Production Board, which is expected to replace the present priorities system under which all users of critical war materials obtain the ingredients for production.

Royal Firman and Walter Gros, special consultants of the WPB Washington staff, will discuss the new plan and its special application to users of steel, copper and aluminum in the program to adjust production schedules to available supplies. John B. Reeves, regional WPB priorities manager, will conduct the meeting, which will begin at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Dinkler room of the Ansley hotel.

4-H SCHOLARSHIP

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Tia Kate Gibbons, 20, Deatsville, Ala. won a $200 college scholarship yesterday at the National 4-H Club Congress as a championship prize in canning.

INTERNEE—Charles Hood, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hood, of 2003 McLendon avenue, has been interned in Spanish Morocco, according to a War Department telegram.

Nazi General Stranded

For Lack of Gasoline

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The Berlin radio disclosed today that one of Marshal Rommel's top aides, Major General Bernhard Ramcke, commander of a paratrooper brigade, has been removed from North Africa after a shortage of gasoline had left him stranded in the desert.

It said Ramcke and Captain Heinrich Schweikhardt, group commander of a Nazi fighter squadron, were at Adolf Hitler's headquarters today to be awarded oak leaves to the knight's cross of the iron cross.

Ramcke, the broadcast said, was left behind with some of his men at the battle of El Alamein because of a lack of gasoline but captured some British trucks and he and his men reached Rommel's main forces in them.

General Clark Awarded DSM By Eisenhower

Decorated for 'Outstanding Leadership' in Mission to Africa.

By WES GALLAGHER.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower today personally decorated Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark with the distinguished service medal for his "outstanding characteristics of leadership, sound judgment, and soldierly qualities" in carrying out a hazardous secret mission to Africa before the Allied invasion.

Eisenhower, a West Point companion of Clark, decorated the youngest lieutenant general in the United States Army in a simple ceremony.

The citation said: "General Clark, as deputy commander-in-chief of the Allied North African Force, rendered distinguished service to the United States Army in connection with planning the organization for operations in Africa.

"As deputy commander, he carried out a vitally important and hazardous mission to Algeria by submarine, and conducted it with conspicuous success important to negotiations with the French official staff. In all these duties he displayed outstanding characteristics of leadership, sound judgment, and soldierly qualities to honor the Army of the United States."

When Clark was decorated, he was flanked by the greatest collection of top-ranking generals and gold braid thus far assembled at headquarters here—and by Negro Sergeant William Chaney, of Washington, D. C.

Chaney was the proudest man in the American Army here today, for he has been Clark's orderly for many years. He stood with Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, of the British Navy, Major General James H. Doolittle, and a dozen other British and American generals while his chief was decorated.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

QAHWE.

Qahwe is what they call it in Arabia. Arabica is where it originated. I am speaking of coffee arabica, if you please, better known to you and me as Mocha-Java, or just plain old coffee. All this to-do about coffee started me to wondering—one of my little setting hobbies. I got to wondering what Noah did about his supply of coffee for himself and family during that long cruise in the ark. And that led me to wonder how Moses managed to satisfy that crowd of folks about coffee during those 40 years in the wilderness. And all that sort of wondering.

And I discovered something. I discovered that qahwe is a sort of modern commodity. Maybe our old friend Solomon didn't have to teach those 3,000 wives of his how to make coffee. I don't know, but it begins to look that way.

It says here that the Greeks and Romans didn't know there was any such beverage as qahwe. Now what do you think of that? And it goes on to say that it was not until the 15th century that there was any record of coffee even in Arabia. In the 17th century coffee plants were carried from Mocha to Batavia by Wiesner, a burgo-master of Amsterdam, and from Amsterdam on to Paris. In 1720 a plant from the Paris Garden was carried to Martinique, and from this plant the entire West Indies was supplied with young coffee trees. In the 16th century coffee was introduced as a beverage from Arabia into Egypt and Constantinople. Leonhard Rauwolf, a German physician, was the first person to introduce coffee in Europe. That was in the year 1573. The first coffee house was opened in London in 1652 by a Greek named Pasqua, a servant of an English merchant named Edwards. The first coffee house was opened in France at Marseilles in 1671. When did they pass the sugar and cream for the first cup of coffee in America? I don't know, but I surely am glad it did reach these shores.

And I got to reading about qahwe and discovered where the contents of a roasted bean is. It runs this way: Water, 1.1; protein, 14.0 (including caffeine, 1.2); fat, 14.5; nitrogen-free extract, 45.8; crude fibre, 19.9; ash, 4.7. Two-thirds of the coffee supply for the world is produced in Brazil. It appears that our per capita consumption of coffee in the U. S. is approximately 12 pounds per year, which would seem to indicate that we have been smelling and drinking coffee at the rate of something like a billion pounds per year, more or less. (I had better leave myself plenty of ground for the letters of correction I will receive on this figure.)

I was so glad to read in the papers that our women and men in the armed services had plenty of coffee for their Thanksgiving Day feasts, and that our government is going to see to it that they have plenty of Mocha-Java right on, even if we have to do on less than we have been accustomed to. Anything to take care of them will be okay with the folks back home.

Gallup Poll Reveals: Prohibition Gains No Support

By GEORGE GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 1.—All the efforts of prohibitionists to tighten liquor restrictions in this war have so far had little effect among the great majority of voters.

Shortly after the recent congressional flurry aimed at putting prohibition into effect in and around Army camps, the institute made another coast-to-coast survey on the question of national prohibition to spot any trend toward increased dry sentiment such as occurred during World War I.

Opposition Grows.

The effect of recent activity, if any, has been to increase opposition to national prohibition, for the most recent poll actually discloses a two-point decline in dry sentiment.

Here are the questions and the findings of those with opinions: "If the question of national prohibition should come up again, would you vote wet, or dry?"

Wet 64%
Dry 36%

Eight per cent of those questioned had no opinion. None of the institute studies conducted so far since Pearl Harbor support the view that this war will provide the same impetus to prohibition which the last war had.

Trend of Feeling.

Here is a table showing the trend of sentiment since this country's entrance into the war:

	Dry	Wet
February, 1942	36%	64%
September, 1942	38	62
Today	36	64

The failure of the dry forces to make any appreciable gain in sentiment for another try at national prohibition does not necessarily mean anti-prohibitionist groups have nothing to worry about. For the institute studies deal only with national prohibition sentiment. In many communities throughout the country there exist local majorities in favor of prohibition.

As a matter of fact, the dry forces have been making gradual gains all along. In 34 of the 48 states local prohibition laws affect at least some part of the population. A few observers, pointing to these local laws, contend that a substantial part of the country may eventually be dry, even though there be no national prohibition law.

Women Consistent.

Institute studies disclose sentiment on the question of national prohibition has up to this time followed a consistent pattern. One, women have been consistently more in favor of prohibition than men. Two, the south has been

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, President Roosevelt's personal physician, was sworn in today for a second term of four years as chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the Navy. Secretary Knox and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, witnessed the ceremony.

OWI Announces Heads Of Joint War Committee

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Appointment of new co-chairmen of the joint war production committee of the United States and Canada was announced today by the Office of War Information.

Charles E. Wilson, vice chairman of the War Production Board, becomes the American chairman and Harry J. Carmichael, co-ordinator of production of Canada's Department of Munitions and Supply, becomes the Canadian chairman.

Wilson succeeds James S. Knowlson, another WPB vice chairman, as American chairman, and Carmichael succeeds G. K. Shells as Canadian chairman.

Knowlson remains a member of the committee, but Shells does not.

BUILD OIL RESERVE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Farmers, businessmen and householders who use liquefied petroleum gas as a fuel were urged by WPB today to build up supplies of the fuel on their own premises. WPB said private consumers will be unable to rely on regular deliveries through the winter and "cannot any longer safely buy on a hand-to-mouth basis."

Farmers Are Ordered To Plant 90 Per Cent of AAA Allotments

Move Designed To Help Meet Big Crop Goals

Grower Will Forfeit Part of Benefits If He Fails.

By OVID A. MARTIN.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Farmers will have to plant within 10 per cent of their 1943 AAA crop allotments in order to obtain maximum benefit payments authorized by farm legislation.

This regulation was announced today by the Agriculture Department in a move designed to obtain a high degree of compliance with next year's record farm production program.

The total amount of payments to be distributed under the 1943 program has not been determined. It has been averaging about $750,000,000 a year.

The department will announce later the rates it will pay farmers for complying with AAA allotments for corn, cotton, peanuts, rice, tobacco and wheat. The rates usually are set at a certain number of cents per bushel, depending upon the commodity.

Failure to plant at least 90 per cent of these crop allotments will result in payment deductions at a rate five times the compliance rate. This means that a farmer's crop payment would be wiped out entirely should he plant only 70 per cent of his allotment.

Since 1943 crop allotments for cotton, tobacco and wheat are the maximum deemed necessary, farmers who overplant these crops will receive deductions at a rate 10 times the compliance rate. The deduction for excess corn acreage will be the same as the compliance rate.

Farmers also will have to reach 90 per cent of their production goals for the so-called war crops, which include soy beans, flaxseed, peas, hemp and tomatoes and peas for canning. Failure to achieve 90 per cent of war crop goals would make a farmer subject to crop payment deductions at the rate of $15 per acre for each acre short of the 90 per cent.

Relief for Farmers Urged by Linder

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—State agricultural officials told the Senate Agriculture Committee today that farmers are almost put in a straitjacket by some of the rules made by these bureaus in Washington as they urged relief for farmers from price control and other federal regulations.

Tom Linder, Georgia commissioner of agriculture, contended "food famine is inevitable" unless agriculture is designated a war industry, farm workers exempted from the draft on that basis and agricultural controls relaxed.

R. A. Trovati, president of the National Association of State Commissioners, Secretaries and Directors of Agriculture and Commissioner in Minnesota, presented the attitude of the organization to the committee.

Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, protested, however, that this abandonment of agricultural quotas would "take the floor out of prices."

Connally, Democrat, Texas, said either price levels for farm commodities would have to be raised or subsidies paid to maintain production goals by "interesting the farmer."

INJURED—Tubby Walton, widely known Atlanta sports figure and businessman, was injured when the freak thunderstorm struck the Municipal Airport yesterday afternoon.

blown in and other pieces of timber were driven through the corrugated roof.

At the Blevins Aircraft Corporation hangar, the wind ripped off the wing of a Cub trainer outside and blew a Ryan monoplane through a heavy wire fence and into a parked automobile owned by Lieutenant S. P. Martin, of 852 Beechwood avenue, S. E.

Across the street from Blevins, the wind smashed in the doors of the Southern Airways hangar, overturning a Waco plane with four students inside. None was injured.

Damage in State.

Reports of lesser damage came in from several Georgia towns. At Dallas, 35 miles northwest of Atlanta, Mrs. G. G. Murdock informed relatives in East Point that the storm ripped the roof off her home. Wires were torn down at Covington and windows were smashed and shingles blown off in Carrollton.

L. H. Williams, of 217 Hancock street, Decatur, was informed by telephone that winds flattened every building except one and unroofed that at his farm near Athens. No other damage was reported in the vicinity.

The damage at the airport will run into "thousands of dollars," according to J. H. Gray, manager. However, Gray said no accurate estimate of damages could be made until each section of the airport can be considered individually.

Hail Inflicts Damage.

Hailstones, described "almost as big as your fist," inflicted damage on the grounded planes. High winds ripped fabric from others that did not break their moorings.

Weather officials described the storm as a "freak thunderstorm accompanied by high winds and hail." They said the condition was not unusual.

The thermometer climbed rapidly from 54 degrees at 12:30 to a high of 69 degrees when the storm broke at 4:30 o'clock, weather officials said, and by 8:30 o'clock, four hours after the storm, had dropped back to 48 degrees.

Three windows were blown in at United Motors, near the Biltmore hotel, and a huge sign atop the Biltmore was twisted around. Warning of the approaching storm was flashed to the Naval Reserve Air Base, near Chamblee, in time for the airplanes to be securely tied down, the officer of the day said. Only casualties at the base were the football goal posts on the athletic field.

An automobile parked on the edge of Piedmont park started rolling before the strong winds, picked its way among trees over 300 yards of the golf course and finally overturned in the lake.

Hitler Fumbled At Stalingrad, Duranty Says

Veteran Soviet Reporter Will Speak Here Tonight.

By KEELER MCCARTNEY.
Hitler fumbled the ball in trying to smash an ideal at Stalingrad and lost forever the chance of obtaining the rich Russian oil and wheat regions he so desperately needed to carry on the war, Walter Duranty, widely known war correspondent and author, said here last night.

"The Nazi leader put everything he had into the effort to smash through the Russian Volga city," Duranty declared in an interview at the Henry Grady hotel. "That particular city is dear to all Russians for it was there that Stalin met and beat two 'White' Russian forces in 1919. The present city of Stalingrad took its name from Stalin."

Duranty, the only newspaperman to interview the Russian leader twice, and a correspondent in Russia for 20 years for the New York Times, will speak at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the city auditorium. His appearance here is sponsored by the business and professional women's division of Headquarters.

Stalin's Personality.

Commenting on the personality of Stalin, he asserted: "It is just possible those stories Stalin put out about Russian impatience over a second Allied front were issued for Hitler's benefit. Stalin is that type of man. He does not impress you as being brilliant at first sight, but he is shrewd."

"I asked the man once why he took the name of Stalin, which means 'steel.' He replied simply, 'My friends seem to think that fits me.'"

Duranty bases his assumption that Russia, England and the United States are working closely together on the fact that Stalin launched a wide-scale counterattack almost to the hour of the time American troops landed in North Africa.

However, he does not think that Germany is beaten yet in Russia or anywhere else.

"You can never tell just how strong the Germans are, or what they will try next," Duranty declared. "One thing we do know is the Nazis have been in control of their transportation problems so far, and that transportation has been the weak link in Russia."

An attack at a point other than Stalingrad itself might have been successful, he believes. But Hitler, urged on by the need for oil and grain, sought to gain two objectives in a quick blow—the rich Caucasus section and control of the city named for Stalin.

Von Brock was removed from the German command because, like Ludendorff, he believed that a war of attack could accomplish little if it stalemated into a war of attrition.

Stalin Is Hard.

Stalin himself, whose real name is Djughashvili, is a "hard nut," Duranty said. "But he lives in a hard country." He first interviewed the Russian leader in 1929, just after Stalin had consolidated his forces, and again in 1933, after the United States had recognized Russia.

"He is a man of great perseverance," Duranty said. "That perhaps is his most salient characteristic. But he has grown immensely with experience and has a great sense of realism and timing. I think while he characterized him with the remark that he can 'keep his eye on the ball.'"

Duranty expressed belief that an invasion of some sort, whether it be through Italy or the Balkans, will be necessary to win the war. He is confident that America scored a great diplomatic victory by lifting the ban on Italian nationals as enemy aliens.

As for the peace that will follow, he feels sure Russia will insist upon disarmament, but other than that will make few demands.

Duranty, a native of England, became a European correspondent of The New York Times in 1913 and in 1919 began a 13-year stay in Moscow. He has visited Moscow several months each year for the last seven years.

His books include "I Write As I Please," "The Kremlin and the People" and a new one soon to be published, "Search for a Key."

Storm Scatters Store's Hats, Honest Atlantans Return 'Em

Atlantans are really honest people, R. L. Parham, manager of the Wormser Hat Store at Five Points, told police last night after the windstorm had smashed three of his large plateglass windows and blown away more than $100 worth of hats.

"Before the winds subsided pedestrians were bringing in the hats," Parham said. "While quite a few hats are still missing, many of those blown out of the windows were returned to the store."

War Increases Population in Atlanta Area

Population's going up!

Figures from the census takers in Washington, collected last spring to find out where the civilian population goes in wartime, show that there were 503,000 people in Fulton and DeKalb counties, 5.2 per cent more than were there in 1940.

That's between 25,000 and 30,000 more people than the city's peacetime population.

And if you think that's a lot of people, just look at the increases reported in these cities: Washington, 25.1 per cent; Mobile, 33.1 per cent; Jacksonville, 22.9 per cent; Montgomery, 29.7 per cent; Columbia, S. C., 16.2 per cent, and Charleston, 24.6 per cent.

New York, and the counties comprising its metropolitan area, suffered a 3.2 per cent drop in population. Other areas where the population went down included Manchester, N. H.; Fall River-New Bedford, Mass.; Boston; Roanoke, Va.; Wheeling, Ohio; Winston-Salem, and several small New York and New England communities.

OPA Fights Dixie Truck Rate Boost

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Office of Price Administration officials presented evidence at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing today in opposition to a truck rate increase for carriers hauling textiles from mills in North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other points.

The hearing was scheduled to wind up the testimony on the increase, which was opposed by OPA after it was sought by the Southern Motor Carriers Rate Conference and other motor groups last spring. The requested increases range from 5 to 30 per cent.

Others scheduled to oppose the rate boost included the public utility commissioners of the four states, the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association and the New York Port Authority.

ELECTRIC ENERGY INCREASES
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Electric energy produced for public use in October totaled 16,488,868,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 9.9 per cent over October, 1941, the Federal Power Commission reported today.

duels and consolidation of hard-won Russian positions.

Like the battle of the contracting front at Stalingrad, the newer offensive in the Rzhhev-Vyazma-Velikiye Luki triangle became a wild melee of maneuver over frozen streams and soil, but on both fronts the Russians said they were advancing and increasing by the hour the peril to the haggard enemy.

(Stockholm accounts from Berlin quoted a military spokesman as saying the "great tank battle of the war" was being fought on the central front and the Nazi position was "very grave," with a compact wall of Russian tanks pressing against Nazi lines. Stockholm and London both said street fighting was in progress in Rzhhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and that the key defense city was surrounded.

German Claim.
The German communiqué spoke of bombing Russian troops, camps and rail facilities on the central Don day and night, suggesting yet a third offensive in the Voronezh sector midway between Moscow and Stalingrad. The Germans said Russian attacks between the Volga and Don, in the Don elbow, and on the Tula and Terek sectors in the Caucasus were frustrated. "Southwest of Kalinin and near Toropets embittered fighting is continuing," the communiqué said of the central front.

Hitler was said to have appealed directly for recapture of the vital Rzhhev-Vyazma railway, which the Russians have cut, and to have ordered the Germans themselves to machinegun any retreating Nazi units. Red Star said a captured document quoted Hitler as saying the loss of Rzhhev would "equal the loss of half of Berlin."

Red Star estimated Germany's killed and captured, and the losses of the Red Army, as being about 250,000 men, but this exceeded by about 90,000 the cumulative casualties listed in a series of jubilant special Soviet communiques.

Nazis' Fresh Reserves.
Dispatches said the enemy threw fresh reserves into the central front battle, making numerous counterattacks with tanks and strong infantry units in vain efforts to mend breaks in railway lines. Russian successes in the area midway between Moscow and Leningrad were said to have been halted by the whole German winter defense line, but the year-long siege lines around Leningrad farther north.

All White Russia appeared in danger of being outflanked.

The German commander of the Ninth Tank Division in that area was said to be begging frantically for aid. The Russians exhibited captured documents begging help "today, for tomorrow will be too late."

The growing desperation of the Germans in the Stalingrad salient where the Russians northwest and southwest of the ruined city were striving to close the enemy's escape corridor was exhibited by the increasing use of huge transport planes dropping food and munitions to some encircled garrisons.

Strong Units Snared.

The Russians did not imply that the whole of the Nazi army, originally 300,000, was surrounded, but they said strong units were snared. Fighting still was bitter inside Stalingrad where the Russians reported slow but steady progress.

The drive to the southwest along the railway traversing the North Caucasus was reported nearing Kotelnikovo.

Fighting in the Caucasus was not even mentioned in the noon communiqué, so minor and local had it become.

On the central front, a Red Star dispatch said, the Russians had taken a basic point in the German defense system "not far from Velikiye Luki, 260 miles west of Moscow and 90 miles from Latvia. The Germans there were protected by heavily mined swamps through which Red artillery was blasting a path."

German fortifications were deep, but Russian cannon and tanks, followed by cavalry and infantry were said to have smashed through.

Good Neighbor Fund Under Way

Third annual Good Neighbor Fund, through which citizens of DeKalb county raised nearly $10,000 in cash and donations of food, clothing and toys last year, is getting under way this week under the leadership of the Decatur First Baptist church.

Aroff was also accused of accepting smaller gifts from others who became ensigns and telling untruths when questioned by naval officials.

The six-man court-martial made no announcement of findings at the end of the hearing here. Navy regulations provide that failure to announce innocence at the end of such a hearing indicates a finding of guilt.

There is no record of any charges ever having been placed against witnesses in the Aroff case, however.

Rationing of Butter Wanted by Farm Head

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Roscoe Smith, president of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation, has written Secretary of Agriculture Wickard asking that remaining supplies of butter be rationed and that butter substitutes be used to meet lend-lease requirements.

Smith, a graduate of the University of Georgia and son of former Governor Hoke Smith, has served as chairman of the regents both under Governor Talmadge, in his previous administration, and under former Governor E. D. Rivers.

He was a member from January, 1933, until February, 1938, being chairman from April, 1934. His services were terminated by Talmadge in a dispute over finances and David L. (Red) Barron was named as his successor.

In January, 1937, Smith was again appointed to the board by Rivers and served until June, 1940, when he resigned in protest over the governor's plan to have the University of Georgia award honorary degrees to President Roosevelt and Basil B. Connors, the President's law partner.

House Group Okays Modified Tariff Measure

Denies F. D. R.'s Request To Override Alien Barriers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—

A modified wartime measure, granting President Roosevelt power to suspend tariff regulations, but omitting the authority he asked to override immigration barriers, emerged today from a House Ways and Means sub-committee.

In quick answer to White House pressure for action on the measure this year, the sub-committee turned the compromise over to the full committee, which will consider it tomorrow and decide whether or not to hold public hearings.

Other than omission of the section covering entrance of Allies, the redrafted bill differed little from the form in which it was presented previously to the full committee. Just what reception it would draw remained uncertain.

Under its terms, the President would have "discretionary" authority to suspend tariff laws and regulations on the recommendation of any of several war agencies that the suspension was necessary to the prosecution of the war.

It retained a three-way check-rein on duration of the emergency powers, providing for their automatic expiration on December 31, 1943, or whichever date comes first.

Meanwhile, there arose the possibility that a long-standing controversy over importation of Argentine beef and other "competing" commodities might delay the movement of the legislation through the house and senate before the end of the seventy-seventh congress January 3.

The fear of some lawmakers that the new powers could be used to bring competing products into this country duty free was disclosed by the release of testimony presented last week before an executive session of the full committee.

Representative Carlson (Republican, Kansas), a committee member, declared during that session that "we, in the agriculture section, have battled for years and we are still concerned about the importation of competitive commodities, especially meats."

"I do not think it is unfair to say that this administration has for years tried to bring in imports of beef from South America on a lower tariff, and I think they would be very happy if they could bring it in without any tariff."

In both the house and senate, there has been a persistent demand for public hearings on the bill. That demand was reiterated today by Representative Reed (Republican, New York), ranking minority member of the sub-committee, who said that "we want to make certain that there is nothing interpreted as being in the bill which is not actually there." He added that, while tariff legislation always developed controversy, "the public is ready to see that the war is not hampered by any preconceived notions."

China to Mould Far East, Says Dr. D.F. Stamps

Baptist Missionary To Speak Tonight at Druid Hills.

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Pastor Druid Hills Baptist Church.

"China will mould the Far East of the post-war world," declared Dr. Drew F. Stamps, Southern Baptist missionary in China for the past two decades, stationed at Chinkiang, Hwanghsien and Yangchow, and now back in the United States, having returned on the repatriate S. S. Gripsholm in the early autumn.

Dr. and Mrs. Stamps are now in Atlanta, the guests of the Druid Hills Baptist church. They will speak at a meeting at Druid Hills tonight at 8 o'clock, and Dr. Stamps will preach at the 11 o'clock worship service Sunday morning. His sermon will be broadcast over radio station WGST.

I was playing Dr. Stamps with questions about the China of today and the China of the recent yesterday when they went out there as missionaries, and then asked him about the China of tomorrow, and he gave the answer with which I began this story, that China will mould the Far East in the post-war period.

Why Japs Invaded.

"What does China think of the United States?" I asked him. His penetrating eyes fairly shone as he answered:

"China believes that the United States is her friend. She has complete confidence in our sincerity in spite of what Japan is doing to break down that confidence."

I asked Dr. Stamps why Japan so treacherously and ruthlessly invaded China. He replied:

"Economic pressure and desire to dominate the Far East."

"What, I asked him, 'was your first impression of China upon arriving there more than 20 years ago?'"

"Its vastness and the unlimited opportunity for Christian service which was open to us as missionaries," he said.

And then I asked him, as you would expect me to, what is his present impression about China. And he quickly answered:

"The contribution which China can and will make to practical Christian living."

Know China's Leaders.

Since Dr. and Mrs. Stamps personally know China's great leaders, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Madame Chiang Kai-shek, I asked them about these famous people, now so deeply cherished and admired in our country.

"The generalissimo must be reckoned one of the five great leaders of the world today," said Dr. Stamps. "I need not dwell upon his acknowledged political ability, only to emphasize the fact everywhere accepted in China that Chiang Kai-shek is the man of destiny for not only China, but for the vast Orient. And I attribute his true greatness to the fact that he is an out and out Christian."

Rarely have I come upon a man of such simple and profound Christian faith and practice. He never tires in declaring that he gratefully receives the Bible as God's revealed will. He believes it. He acts upon its teachings. He begins every day with a season of Bible study, and he faithfully observes a season of prayer every evening. None who have ever been blessed by hearing Chiang Kai-shek pray can forget the way this great man talks to God.

"And he teaches us all a very great truth concerning prayer in the fact that he not only talks to God about the little things and the great things, but he listens for God to talk to him. Once when the Japanese bombed the generalissimo's house eight times the same day, he spent a portion of that very evening in prayer. He prayed for his people. He prayed for the Allied nations. He prayed for his enemies."

Thrilling Story.

Dr. Stamps recalled the thrilling story of how Madame Chiang Kai-shek flew in an airplane on December 22, 1936, and rescued the generalissimo from a ring of bandits who had captured him.

"The generalissimo opened his Bible that morning to the 31st chapter of Jeremiah, and read these words in the 22d verse: 'The Lord hath created a new thing in the earth, a woman shall compass a man.' He wondered what that verse could mean; but before noon that day his wife had effected his release and flew him safely back to the capital city."

I first met Drew Stamps at Mercer University in 1910. He was a senior and I was a sophomore. I was having a difficult time with Greek, and I discovered that this red-headed, freckled-faced senior from Carroll county knew his Greek. I used to tip-toe down the dormitory hall, far into the night, to his room to get him to straighten me out on some Greek idiom.

Our friendship has ripened across the years, and I was very grateful when our church was permitted to pay the salary of Dr. Stamps as a missionary in China.

Many Honors.

But this native son of Carroll county has distinguished himself along with his distinguished achievements in China. After graduation from Mercer University and the Southern Theological Seminary, he was pastor of churches in Wisconsin and Georgia; and when World War I broke out, he went into the service as a chaplain. He served at Camp Hancock and Camp Green, and went overseas in the air service with the rank of first lieutenant, stationed at Romorantin, France.

His work as a missionary has been equally distinguished.

State Spurs Effort To Cut Bus Mileage

Schools Soon Must Show Proof of Conservation To Get Supplies.

Efforts of Georgia counties to eliminate unnecessary school bus mileage and inaugurate other conservation methods were spurred by an announcement from the Office of Defense Transportation that gasoline, tires and spare parts for school buses will be provided after February 1 only upon the submission of demonstrated proof that the conservation policies have been carried out.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, said yesterday.

Dr. Collins said the ODT had ruled that the use of school buses for sports events, such as basketball games, will not be authorized this winter.

Warnings that school systems and private owners would have to conserve their school bus equipment came several weeks ago, and the educators began immediately to put their house in order by naming a full-time supervisor of transportation, Claude Purcell.

Miles Eliminated.

Walton county already has eliminated 168 miles a day in its school bus routes, demonstrating what can be done when strict conservation is put into practice," said J. I. Allman, assistant state superintendent.

J. M. Williams, Walton county school superintendent, reported to the State Department of Education that the 168 mile-a-day had been cut off by a local educational program.

This conservation move will mean a saving of approximately $3,600 a year to the Walton county system, which owns its school buses.

"We have every reason to believe that similar revisions in school bus routes can be made in every county in Georgia," Dr. Collins said.

12-Point Policy.

The 12-point policy demanded by Guy Kelcey, regional director of ODT's local transport division, follows:

1. Elimination of unnecessary mileage, including side trips, so that the maximum number of pupils can be carried with the minimum number of bus miles.

2. Transportation will be provided only for students, teachers or other school employees who would have to walk more than two miles to school, or more than a mile and a half to the school bus main route.

3. Pupils shall be required to use available public transportation facilities where such would permit a reduction in school bus miles.

4. Existing boundary lines of school administrative units, such as districts or counties, shall not be allowed to prevent the maximum reduction in the number of buses and bus miles. Pupils must attend the nearest school having space and facilities in the appropriate grade level, regardless of county lines.

5. Bus stops for receiving or discharging pupils will be spaced from one-eighth to one-quarter mile apart, except for physically handicapped children.

6. School authorities will co-operate in arranging staggered school hours where the effectiveness of existing transportation facilities can be increased by such a move, or where a specific transportation problem calls for a change in school hours.

7. Existing contracts will be renegotiated when necessary to facilitate reorganization of school bus routes.

8. Use of school buses for school transportation will be limited to the transportation of pupils, teachers and other school employees between their homes and the schools.

9. School officials and bus operators will co-operate in arranging for the use of school buses in essential worker transportation.

10. Every practicable means of maintaining buses in good operating condition will be effected, in accordance with a program adopted by the National Council of Chief State School Officers, and the ODT's conservation program.

11. Careful selection, adequate training and supervision of drivers will be effected, since the driver is an important factor in bus conservation.

12. Each local school administrative unit will co-operate with adjoining units and state and federal authorities to make a comprehensive survey of school transportation, prepare route maps of counties, and reorganize routes for maximum efficiency.

CHIPS AND CHARM—These Fulton High school lassies, Betty Hughey (left) and June Parker (right), have cornered the Girl Reserve Committee chairman, Mrs. Bolling Jones (center), and sold her the first bag of potato chips in the Girl Reserves' campaign. Proceeds will go to the organization's newspaper and individual clubs.

Girl Reserves Sell Chips To Raise Funds

Returns To Be Used For Newspaper and Club Activities.

More than 600 'teen age girls in Fulton and DeKalb counties yesterday set out on foot and by bicycle on a door-to-door endeavor to get their neighbors and friends to buy potato chips.

It is the Girl Reserve's first potato chip sale, an enterprise to raise funds for the support of the organization's newspaper, "The Girl Reserve Gleam," and for club activities.

Two students of North Fulton High, Betty Hughey and June Parker, sold the first bag of potato chips to Mrs. Bolling Jones, chairman of the Girl Reserve committee. From now to December 10, the girls will work before and after school taking orders for the chips, which will be delivered later.

The two girls selling the most potato chips will have their expenses paid at Camp Highland next summer, and the club, with the best per member record, will receive a silver loving cup.

Hartle Temporary Chief Of U. S. Army in Britain

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Major General Russell P. Hartle is temporarily in command of the United States Army in the United Kingdom during the absence of Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower, American Army headquarters for the European theater announced today.

Eisenhower is in active command of the Allied expedition in North Africa.

Prior to this temporary assignment to the United Kingdom command Hartle was commanding general of United States troops in Northern Ireland. He has been in the European theater of operations for several months.

WOMEN RAILROADERS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The Long Island railroad today had 28 women working as engine cleaners for the first time in the carrier's history. They work at the Morris Park yards near Jamaica, N. Y. They vary widely in age and experience and one who has five children still manages to cook dinner and do her housework every night.

Bonds or stamps will be the admission fee, and recording of President Roosevelt's speech of December 8, 1941, and movies of the Pearl Harbor bombing will be featured.

It's good to have you home for Christmas, son

This Christmas is going to be brighter for thousands of mothers because their sons in the service came home for the holidays.

Other mothers will be traveling by train to visit their boys in camp.

Soldiers, sailors, marines... parents, wives, sweethearts... all must use our regular trains... for Uncle Sam says, holiday or no holiday, we can't run extra trains or sections for civilian travel. That means crowded trains, at best.

So... before you plan to travel by train during the holidays, ask yourself this question: "Which is most important, my trip or theirs?"

If your answer is "theirs, of course"... and if you postpone your trip, you will know that you have helped someone to say: "It's good to have you home for Christmas, son."

Miss Morrison Gives Address On Freedom

Christian Science Leader Speaks at First Church of Christ.

Margaret Morrison, C. S., Christian Science leader from Boston, Mass., spoke on "Christian Science Proclaims the Gospel of Freedom" last night at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, at Peachtree and Fifteenth streets.

Introduced by William Zuber, first reader, Miss Morrison said: "Perhaps no saying of Jesus the Christ is more familiar or more frequently quoted than that ringing statement to His disciples given in the Gospel of John: 'If ye continue in My word, then are ye My disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.' The human race has always been engaged in a struggle for freedom. Many have been the wars fought in the hope of gaining or maintaining this freedom—freedom of the individual to worship according to his conscience and to work out his own salvation. But the repetition of history proves that freedom does not come through the devastations of war, but through the enlightenment of Truth—that Truth which was demonstrated by Christ Jesus, discovered in 1866 by Mary Baker

On page 226 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy, we read: "The voice of God in behalf of the African slave was still echoing in our land, when the Christ of the herald of this new crusade sounded the keynote of universal freedom, asking a fuller acknowledgment of the rights of man as a Son of God, demanding that the fetters of sin, sickness, and death be stricken from the human mind and that its freedom be won, not through human warfare, not with bayonet and blood, but through Christ's divine science."

"True healing in Christian Science is metaphysical, not merely physical, although it is always apparent to the physical senses. Its holy aim and its effect is to

Jobs Announced By Civil Service

The Civil Service Commission announced yesterday vacancies for junior wage and hour inspectors, with starting salaries of $2,300 per year.

Persons with a knowledge of business methods and records, especially records relating to wages and hours, are needed. It was said, to fill positions with the Wages and Hours Division of the Department of Labor.

Qualifications include either two years of responsible experience providing familiarity with business methods and records, or four years of study in a resident school of accountancy, a recognized law school, college or university with at least 12 semester hours in courses such as labor, economics, accounting, business organization or law statistics. Combinations of such education and experience are acceptable.

Full information regarding these positions may be obtained from the local Civil Service office in the New Post Office building.

Eugenia Harty Will Attend Party Given by Fannie Hurst

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY must have rubbed a very special rabbit's foot recently, considering the good fortune that has come her way. You see, she is spending this week at Fort Totten, N. Y., where she is the guest of Major and Mrs. Borge Rhode, both of whom are figures of international importance. And last week she spent in New York City, where she was present to hear "Daughter of the Regiment," in which Lily Pons brilliantly opened the Metropolitan Opera season.

Among the numerous parties Eugenia will attend during her stay with Major and Mrs. Rhode is that at which Fannie Hurst, the noted author, will be hostess. The occasion will honor Mrs. Borge as a special tribute to the publication of her new book, "Look Forward, Warrior," a plea for the assurance of world peace after the war.

Mrs. Rhode, as you know, is the former Ruth Bryan Owen, who for several years was minister plenipotentiary to Denmark. One of America's most charming and brilliant women, she is a prominent factor in social as well as diplomatic circles. Mrs. Rhode and Eugenia's mother, Mrs. Russell Bridges, are friends of long standing and the former has often been a visitor in the Bridges household. Mr. Bridges is Mrs. Rhode's lecture agent, having also acted as agent for her father, the late William Jennings Bryan.

It is not through coincidence, but due to governmental foresight, that Major Rhode is serving this country in a capacity similar to that in which he served Denmark during the last war as a captain in the Royal Danish Guards. During the last war he instructed Greek soldiers in anti-aircraft. This time he is in charge of anti-aircraft defense for New York City.

• • • JEANNETTE ESTES and her fiancé, Dr. Walter Hurt Cargill Jr., are the thrilled and appreciative recipients of numerous handsome wedding presents. But the one they treasure most, due to its sentimental and historical value, is a beautiful silver soup ladle which is more than 200 years old. It is an heirloom in Walter's family on his maternal side and is a gift from his grandmother, Mrs. F. B. Dillard, of Columbus.

The ladle is exquisitely chased with the crest of the Hamiltons of Scotland, having originally belonged to an early Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, from whom Walter is descended. When members of this noted family migrated to America, they brought with them most of the family silver, which has been handed down to each succeeding generation, the ladle having been included in these now priceless pieces of antique silver.

Jeannette's marriage to Walter will be one of the most important events of the winter season and will take place on December 19 in the little chapel of Glenn Memorial church. Preceding the nuptials, the prominent and popular couple is being honored at numerous parties given by a host of friends.

Council Calls Women's Meeting

Mrs. Jessica Davenport Watts, executive secretary of the Georgia Legislative Council, invites the president and legislative chairmen of all women's organizations in Atlanta to meet Thursday, December 3, at 3 o'clock at headquarters of the League of Women Voters, 408 Forsyth building. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss proposed constructive legislation to be presented at the coming session of the legislature.

The time was never more propitious than now, for every woman to interest herself and club in an active and constructive effort to have laws passed for the welfare and safety of the American people. Especially is this true in regard to health and safety measures, with so many women in war work, and so many children whose home life has been so disrupted.

George Raft Packs Mean Right Against His Fellow Actors

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—George Raft is doing his best to injure his Hollywood career. He is equally unpopular with players and picture makers because of his fist fights with the former, and his too casual treatment of the latter. The last Theopian to feel the might of George's right was Peter Lorre who, despite his portrayal of screen villains, is a mild little gentleman in real life. Rosalind Russell's baby is expected in April, and she is praying for a girl. . . . Barbara Hutton (Mrs. Cary Grant) is willing to pay $225 a month for a butler. Her agent, however, advised her to begin her offer at $175. As you know, have the few remaining butlers in town leaving their jobs. . . . Greta Garbo caused a mild sensation when, seen entering the infantile shop in Beverly Hills just before she left for New York. But Greta is merely the landlady of the store and was collecting the rent. And, by the way, what has happened to her film career?

Olivia de Havilland is easier to get along with now that she is in love with John Huston (who has been separated for some time from his wife). "Livy" has waited a long time for the right man—she is 27 years old—but is assuring her friends that she will wait forever, if she must, for marriage to Huston, who is now in the Signal Corps.

Ensign Richard Ney gave up his seat on the plane to my small daughter on our journey to Hollywood. He left a book on the seat—'Women in Love'. As you know, his proposed marriage to Greer Garson has been postponed for the duration. . . . Elaine Barrie was guilty of bad taste when she used John Barrymore's photograph in local papers to help the auction sale of her goods and chattels from the house she once shared with the late "great lover." John, a kindly soul, probably wouldn't have minded, at that. . . . Jean Arthur's hair is greying, which is why she sometimes wears a wig. . . . Current applicants for film jobs start their letters with "Dear Sirs: I am 4-2."

Cary Grant will follow Clark Gable's footsteps and enlist in the Officers' Training Corps in Miami. . . . I met someone who trained with Clark, and he told me that the drilling and routine were extremely hard on the 41-year-old film star—"his feet hurt him terribly, but he would not complain. He did not want to be called a sissy." No fear of that, Clark. . . . Tyrone Power, fatter in the face than when I last saw him, tells me that he is leaving in a day or two for enrollment with the Marines. "I don't care what I do," says Tyrone. "But I'd prefer active service." Wife Annabella will be with him during his training at San Diego.

Joan Crawford is acting as unofficial agent for her husband, Phil Terry, and has boosted his salary to $1,500 (at Metro). His previous price per week was $100. . . . Which reminds me—Jane Russell is still receiving $300 a week from her boss, Howard Hughes, even though she has not worked for three years and the picture she did make, "The Outlaw," has not yet been released. But Hughes is a rich man and is willing to pay for what he wants, as witness his bidding for the screen rights of "Lady in the Dark." At the time he was enamored of Ginger Rogers and wished to star her in the Gertrude Lawrence success, he bid $300,000 for the picture. He was informed that Paramount had just bought it for $280,000. He then raised his bid to $320,000, but a contract is a contract. Ginger is no longer head girl with Hughes, but she is not worrying. Paramount is starring her in "Lady in the Dark."

Margaret Sullivan says it is not true that she is expecting a fourth child in the spring. "At least, not that I know of," she adds. In that case, why not make another picture, Maggie?

Simple Solution to Use as Ear Drops

By Dr. William Brady.

For many years readers have been reporting the excellent results obtained from regular use of the following simple ear drops for chronic running ear:

Boric (sometimes called boracic) acid, 10 grains; pure grain alcohol, enough to fill a one-ounce vial.

Warm the solution moderately by standing the vial in hot water for a while, and drop two of three drops in the affected ear each night and morning for many weeks or months.

Formerly any one could obtain such a solution from the druggist without difficulty. Nowadays the druggist requires a physician's prescription for the alcohol. I'm sorry, but that's as far as I can go—perhaps you can wheedle out of your family doctor the necessary prescription.

Please note I suggest use of the drops ONLY for chronic running ear. NOT for acute earache, acute inflammation or abscess or gathering in the ear.

It is advisable in every case of chronic middle ear trouble with a discharge from the ear to avoid plugging the ear canal with cotton.

It is always better to keep the ear canal freely open for ventilation and drainage. Only time any cotton or other absorbent or plug or stopper or "protector" should be used in the ear canal is when the physician specifically directs it and then it should be used only as long as the physician deems it necessary.

Use of oil of any kind in the ear is generally unwise.

By now surely everyone knows that it is always dangerous to insert toothpick, hairpin or any other implement in the ear canal—not merely dangerous to the eardrum but because in this way it is easy to infect the lining of the ear canal and produce a very painful inflammation or abscess there.

If in any instance the ear wax accumulates in the ear canal in a mass sufficient to cause unpleasant noises, or temporary deafness when the wax plug swells on entrance of water, or even a hacking cough from irritation of a branch of pneumogastric nerve in external ear canal, or dizziness, it is never safe to attempt removal of the hardened cerumen by any other means than gentle syringing.

For syringing use a fountain syringe filled with tepid water containing heaping teaspoonful of saleratus in each pint, hang syringe directly over ear, hold nozzle in basin held under the ear. Such syringing may be repeated night and morning three or four times if necessary—if this does not bring away the plug of cerumen the next step is for the physician to take.

Wife Has Everything To Lose By an 'Off the Record' Affair

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I have been married for nine years, having eloped at 17. I realize now this was too young. Four years ago I met a man 30 years old. Unmarried, attractive and one of the most interesting persons I ever met. We have been having dates for two years, but during the past years things have not been as happy for me, for he seems to have changed a bit. I know that he has been going with another woman, also married. I cannot help wondering if this woman holds more charms for him than myself.

I do not love my husband and for that reason have been trying to recapture some romance by going with this man. I have missed out in love and romance in my life and this man has given me much of that which I have missed. He tells me he loves me better than anyone in the world. We write often, that is I do, but he never answers my letters. My husband and I still live together, but we no longer love each other. I know that he goes with another woman, for I have seen them together. My friends tell me I am foolish to suspect him of being untrue. What do you think?

UNHAPPY WIFE. I do not see how you could expect your husband to remain like Old Faithful if you are stepping out. To be perfectly honest with you I do not think your admirer is interested in either you or the other woman. He just likes to step around in my opinion, and stepping out with a married woman relieves him of any responsibility of marriage. He enjoys the life of a woman's company, and they do not have to worry about the future and married life. They know there are no strings tied to them and they can pull up stakes and move away anytime a pretty face intrigues them. It is very obvious to see why he did not answer your letters. He was too smart to put anything down in black and white which could be used against him. You made no reference to it, but I feel sure that in no period of the time the two of you have been dating, he mentioned your getting a divorce to marry him. That should prove to you that he was not serious.

Maybe you did marry young and perhaps you feel that you did miss out on romance, but there are two things for you to remember: either stay with your husband, be true to him and make him a good wife, or get a divorce and try to win this man whom you seem to fancy. In thinking the situation over, I feel that you will realize you have been making a mistake.

STICK TO FRIENDSHIP Dear Dixie:

I have a friend whom I think is the most wonderful woman in the world. She has every quality which a woman should have. I envied her for these things and the fact she had a husband who was seemingly devoted to her. In public he was so nice to her and always kissing her and telling her how much he loved her and bragging on what a swell wife he has won. Now here comes the fly in the ointment. One day I went to call and he did not get a divorce and try to win this man whom you seem to fancy. In thinking the situation over, I feel that you will realize you have been making a mistake.

A TRUE FRIEND. If she does not care how her husband treats her, why should you? Just let the husband alone, but remain a friend of this woman. She needs friends like you. You would, too, if you were married to a beast like that husband.

MY DAY: Evening Spent With Son in Service

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—Yesterday was a quiet day. On Saturday evening one of our sons, who has just returned from a very long tour of duty, and his wife spent the night and we enjoyed hearing all about his adventures.

On Sunday, in Hyde Park, I tried to make many of my Christmas plans for the various places in which we celebrate the Christmas season. I enjoyed walking in the woods, though most of the leaves are now gone and one has to enjoy the winter beauty of bare trees. Today I am back in Washington holding a press conference, speaking on the radio with Mrs. Esther Tufts, lunching with the Women's National Democratic Club, and doing various other things the rest of the day.

It is curious how few people take up a good many hours every day. One of the great opportunities afforded one living in the White House is the chance of knowing, seeing and talking with people who are doing things all over the world. At the same time, one may see a great many people who are keenly interested in activities on a national, state or local scale in our country.

I sometimes think one can have a better perspective of the range of human interest here than anywhere else in the world. It is true that in London, because of the influx of people from various conquered countries, you get a sense of touching closely the points of view of more European nations.

On the other hemisphere, the Far East and the European continents seem to touch each other more closely, and the North and South American people have a far more intimate relationship with each other. On the whole, I think one gets a more complete perspective here, if one wishes to have it, than anywhere else in the world.

This gives us, as a nation, a very great responsibility to prepare ourselves to understand and interpret to each other the various people who may meet here more easily than anywhere else in the world. It is a role which does not permit of isolationism in thought or deed, but which requires of us an ability to think and to feel with other nations, for we cannot interpret what we do not understand. I think this role is particularly important in the case of women, and they should recognize their power and the responsibility which accompanies it.

Exercises To Relax You After a Day's Work

By Ida Jean Kain.

It is hard to convince the tired business girl that exercise will rest her. Just broach the subject and she draws back and lets you have it—"After the way I work all day, I am so tired I can scarcely drag one foot ahead of the other. Don't say 'exercise' to me!"

That's what you might call brain fatigue. It tells you in no uncertain terms that you are tired of having things to do, but doing a few vigorous exercises is the antidote. The muscular activity stirs up the

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Real Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking. This splendid recipe is used by millions every year. It makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it. From any druggist get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes. Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of very effective and quick-acting cough medicine, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it. You'll be amazed by the way it holds off of coughs, giving you a soothing relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Mmmmm! Real Brandied Fruits! Peaches, figs, pineapple, dates! Any of your favorites—or all of them combined! Miss Ann Gaines Marries Lt. Beals In San Antonio

Announcement is made today by M. B. Gaines, of 1130 Piedmont avenue, of the marriage of his daughter, Miss Ann Gaines, to First Lieutenant John T. Beals, U. S. Army Air Corps, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Beals, of Jacksonville, Fla. The wedding took place on November 9 at Travis Park Methodist church in San Antonio, Texas.

Mrs. Beals is a beautiful brunette, and attended Brenau College in Gainesville, and the University of Mississippi. She is a technician at the Government Air Base at Tucson, Ariz., and took her training at the Eggleston hospital, Atlanta, Ga.

Lieutenant Beals is a graduate of Georgia Military Academy, and attended Georgia Tech until his senior year, when he joined the Air Corps in 1940. At Tech, he was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He received his wings at Barksdale Field, in Shreveport, La., in 1941, and was in the Ferry Command until he went to Anchorage, Alaska, last January.

He was recently awarded the Air medal for meritorious service in the battle of the Aleutian Islands. He was one of eight fliers cited by Major General Simon B. Buckner for carrying personal and vital supplies to the battle front in the face of aerial patrol.

The Atlanta Junior League members welcomed Mrs. Thomas Huguenin, of Charleston, S. C., director of Region V for the National Association of Junior Leagues, at their meeting held yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club. Mrs. Huguenin, here on an inspection survey of the activities of the local league, told enthusiastically to the extent leagues in this section of the country are participating in war work without sacrificing any of the customary community welfare work.

Considerable attention was devoted to plans for the "Bonds for Victory Ball" to be held on December 7 at the city auditorium. Mrs. V. W. McKinney, chairman of the ball, announced that a $25 war bond would be given to the Junior League girl who sells the most tickets for the ball, with the proviso that the winner must sell at least 50 tickets. She also reported that many valuable prizes have been obtained for the ball by her capable chairman.

Mrs. Robert Autrey, chairman of the Children's Theater Group, announced the league would sponsor a marionette performance of Uncle Remus characters on Saturday at 3:30 o'clock in Rich's theater in commemoration of the 94th birthday anniversary of Joel Chandler Harris. Three of the famous Br'er Rabbit stories, including that of the Tar Baby, will be presented.

The principal puppet workers will be Mesdames Ruth Ellis, John Otley Jr., Marion Kiser, D. Connah and Murdoch Ecken, who started working with these puppets 12 years ago. Rights were obtained by Mrs. Ellis from Walt Disney to give this performance, which will be free, and to which all children are invited.

Christmas plans were another interesting topic of the meeting. Mrs. Erroll Hay, president, announced that as a part of the Christmas charity program that $25 has been appropriated for the 10 Opportunity families sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution, and that a similar amount for the Atlanta Journal Empty Stocking Fund would be given.

Mrs. Hugh Dorsey Jr., chairman of Eggleston hospital committee, announced that the annual Christmas party would be given and that the stocking would be filled for each child. Mrs. Eugene Pearce, Junior League Speech School chairman, announced that plans for a Christmas party for the children were being made, the affair to be held on December 18.

Mrs. William Beers Jr., education chairman, reported that the 20 provisionals have completed their course and have been assigned to welfare work.

Mrs. Malon Courts, associate representative, reported on the 110 associate members. With many of the members engaged in several activities a tabulation reveals that 135 have completed various courses, 22 are serving as board members.

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Big Flights Begin CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 1.—Glancing out a window 30 or more stories above snow-capped roofs in the Loop sector, I thought of the lines of a poem by Granny Rice which will stir the hunting instinct in John Martin and a few others who are awaiting duck flights down south.

Granny wrote—
"When the wild winds howl and the shadows flit
Over the wall where the fire is lit,
When the snow drifts deep and driving rain
Sings its song at the window pane,
When the dim world lies in the pit of night,
As the gray ghosts shriek in the mad gale's flight."
The big duck flights have begun storming over Illinois, dropping into the lakes where eager hunters wait in the blinds to fill their bags.

They're making short work of it. They're getting the limit in a few hours. Baseball magnates of major and minor leagues also are here to get the bag limit over unsuspecting rivals, but there is not a great deal of dealing in prospect.

The times are too uncertain. There is no way of guaranteeing that a player secured today will not be tossed hand grenades at a Jap in March. And so the moguls are standing pat, holding what they've got and hoping that it all will work out for the future of their game.

They've curtailed travel and training schedules and are prepared to meet any other requests of government agencies. They feel assured that government sanction is only a matter of course.

A Contribution The Atlanta Crackers have contributed a goodly number of men to the armed forces. A check-up today revealed there are 25 boys out of the Cracker roster and farm system clubs pitching for Uncle Sam. And of the 30 on the present roster, President Earl Mann expects to lose more than half before March rolls around.

We'll be tickled to death to have 16 or 17 men to open the season," Mann said. "We think baseball serves a definite purpose, and we're happy to have had so many good boys to give to the service."

The Crackers have a nucleus of family men, such as Mauldin, O'Brien, Scott, Deal, Rambo, Larry Smith, Earl McGowan, Vernon Curtis, Charley Glick, Hal Blackstock, Charley Woodall and Clyde Humphreys. Of these, Glick is an Army possibility, not having any children. The others are being counted. Letchas is a family man but he is to be used in a trade or will be sold outright.

Last year, as the only town in the Southern League having gas rationing, Atlanta, notwithstanding the first second-division finish since 1934, led the Southern League in attendance.

We're going to find out in the good old summer time of 1943 what the other fans of the Southern League really think about supporting a club. Everybody will be rationed this time.

It's to be a crucial test of Southern League stability.

Back on His Feet Before leaving Atlanta, ardent supporters of the Georgia Bulldogs beseeched us to "put that Bill Cunningham in his place."

Bill happens to be a very smart and able newspaperman who sold out the Sugar Bowl on the belief that Boston College and Georgia would meet. He was kidding about those 20 points.

Now he will direct his energies to building the Boston team back up, following its fatal meltdown against a fast-improving Holy Cross squad, and before another week is out he will have the Eagles of Denny Meyers five touchdowns better than Alabama. Just mark these words.

A Cunningham crushed to earth will rise again.

The Orange Bowl will profit by his drum-beating. The Sugar Bowl people are very sad it did not work out that he could be with them. The understanding is that Boston College had a Sugar Bowl bid locked up but withdrew their priority after the Holy Cross licking. This left the way open for the Sugar Bowlers to invite Tennessee. It was a foregone conclusion that the Georgia-Georgia Tech winner would go to the Rose Bowl.

It is to be doubted either Tech or Georgia had a Sugar Bowl bid. The committee members knew in advance what the Georgia schools had in mind. That is, everything except Tech's acceptance of a Cotton Bowl bid. That was a bit of a surprise. Tech was thought to be headed back to the Orange Bowl in case of a defeat.

So that's how Tennessee happened to get a deserved break.

He Admitted It Bill Terry's admission that he wasn't worth 30 grand a year to the Giants has softened up more than one newspaperman who hated him with a passion.

It is now being freely said that Terry, in square dealing with his employer, Horace Stoneham, is no phony. What-ever else they have held against him is left unsaid. Terry showed the boys something in tossing a $30,000 job away on his own volition.

There is, of course, the possibility that he has a better-paying job awaiting him at Philadelphia. If it happens to be true, the boys may change their minds about his apparent philanthropic spirit in letting the Giants out of an expensive situation.

In any event, Terry is well fixed, even if he has to go back to Memphis and only manage that rich Germantown farm.

CITY BASKETBALL NEWS

LORELEI WINS. Coach H. L. Lough's Lorelei Ladies broke into the win column in the Walworth Girls' Basketball League last night at Warren Sports Arena, defeating Southern Bell, 32 to 19.

Prior to last night the Ladies had lost a pair of close games to the Trojans and Walco. Rayne, clever little forward, led the Lorelei attack with 13 points, and the Lorelei attack with 13 points, and the Lorelei attack with 13 points.

Smith, Jenkins, Ruby Reed and Lee were the best scorers for Southern Bell. High Huddleston's Lorelei General selected had an off night on the offense and dropped a 42-35 decision to the power of Georgia Power Trojans. Allen and Hargrove, with 12 and 10 points each, stood out for the winners. G. Wallace started for Lawson.

In the final game of the night, Lewis Baker's Seahawks pulled the biggest upset of the league thus far with an 18-12 victory over Walco's defending champions. The Seahawks led at half-time, 10 to 7. Eleanor Plaxico, Walco forward, had an opportunity to tie the ball game up with a free shot attempted after the final whistle, but missed. Sara Killian, with 15 points, was the big star.

A.P. Poll Puts Buckeyes First, Georgia Second

Wisconsin, Tulsa, Tech, Irish, Vols, Eagles, Tide, Wolves in Top 10.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.
NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Ohio State, Big Ten champion and winner in nine of ten games, is the best college football team of 1942 in the opinion of 156 sports experts polled by the Associated Press.

The Buckeyes, ranked No. 1 in the first three tabulations of the season, skidded to tenth in the middle of the campaign, but were third, a week ago, following their defeat of Michigan. This week, on the strength of their 41-17 victory over Iowa Pre-Flight, Coach Paul Brown's athletes returned to the throne.

Georgia, which took over the front position when Ohio State abdicated late in October, finished 92 points behind the Midwesterners in the final compilation. Boston College, victim of Holy Cross' gridiron after being on top for only one week, slumped to eighth place in the finale.

Wisconsin, only team to conquer the Buckeyes, grabbed third place just ahead of Tulsa, unbeaten place Tulsa's seventh-place Tennessee will enliven things at New Orleans; Georgia Tech in fifth place, goes against Texas, No. 11, in the Cotton Bowl, while Boston College, in eighth place, faces the opposition for the fourth place Alabama in Miami's Orange festival.

Ohio State, which finished thirteenth a year ago in Brown's first season as head coach, collected 337 points during the season, while limiting its opponents to 114. Although neither Brown nor any of L.S. aids has mentioned it, it has become known that 21 of the Buckeye players were taken ill en route to Madison, Wis., for the crucial game with the powerful Badgers and were not at their strongest in the 17-to-7 setback.

The standings of the teams (first place votes in parentheses, points figured on 10-9-8-7, etc., basis):

FIRST TEN.

Ohio State (84)	1332
Georgia (62)	1329
Wisconsin (4)	936
Tulsa (4)	933
Georgia Tech	705
Notre Dame	590
Tennessee	533
Boston College	485
Michigan	467
Alabama	234

SECOND TEN.

11. Texas 137; 12. Stanford 72; 13. University of California at Los Angeles 54; 14. William & Mary (1) 39; 15. Santa Clara 32; 16. Auburn 25; 17. Washington State 24; 18. Mississippi State 22; 19. Iowa 19; 20. Minnesota, Holy Cross 18; 21. Princeton 17; 22. Navy 16; 23. Louisiana State 3; 24. Army 3; 25. Harvard 2; 26. North Carolina 1; 27. Fordham 1; 28. Missouri 1.

RAY ROBINSON.
CLEVELAND, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Ray (Sugar) Robinson, New York's unbeaten welterweight, scored a technical knockout over Izzy Janazzo, of Brooklyn, in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout on the Cleveland News' 17th annual Christmas fund boxing show tonight.

All-Star Game Set for July 7 At Philadelphia

Service Men's Bat and Ball Fund To Benefit Again.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The major leagues set their 1943 All-Star spectacle today for Philadelphia's Shibe Park on Wednesday, July 7, and wrestled with many other problems, including night baseball and the operation of the Phils in the National League next year.

The All-Star game will be played again for baseball's "Ball and Bat" fund for service men and will be the American League's home game. Whether a second contest in the manner of last year's clash with a team of service stars at Cleveland would be played was not yet known, the presidents of the two major leagues said.

All plans for a wartime program for baseball were left for action at a joint meeting to be presided over by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, on Thursday.

The National League's afternoon session was devoted largely to probing into the plight of the Phils, although President Ford Frick said he doubted that a solution could be found during the meetings.

Frick said that he did hope the value of the franchise could be determined tomorrow and that the league had received expressions of interest from bidders.

Frick also disclosed that at the board of directors' meeting yesterday a plan was considered which definitely provided a place where "Bill Terry could fit into the picture," but said the discussion today had closed this particular avenue.

The two leagues ran into disagreement again this year on the number of night games a club would be permitted to play, and this issue was carried over to the voting for a limit of seven games, and the Cincinnati Reds announced that no matter how many might be authorized, they would not play more than seven.

The American League voted against a request by Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators, that each club be permitted to play as many as it pleased, but agreed to back him in the joint meeting for 28 games for Washington and set a minimum of 14 for other clubs.

Frick and President William Harridge, of the American League, said that the ball used next year would not vary in any marked degree of liveliness from the ones used in 1942.

The American League gave some attention to suggestions from Joseph Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, that baseball travel be curtailed. All clubs were ordered to canvass their spring training plans with an eye to reduction of travel and it was indicated that some revamping of exhibition schedules would result.

Sinkwich Wins Scoring Race; Reynolds Next

By THE Associated Press.

Georgia's Frankie Sinkwich won the Southeastern conference's individual scoring title by a 39-point margin. He failed to increase his season total of 96 tallies in the final against Georgia Tech and saw his lead trimmed by four points.

Auburn's Jim Reynolds went ahead of Charley Kuhn, Kentucky halfback, who had been holding second place several weeks.

Jack Jenkins, scoring one point against Tennessee, gained final claim to fourth place in the conference scoring with 49 points, after previously being tied with Lamar Davis and Charlie Trippi, of Georgia.

The SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

PEAKS AND VALLEYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Football has known its peaks and valleys before, when teams came up from deep pits to tall heights, or fell from tall heights to deep pits in spectacular form reversals that turned them into entirely different teams from one week to another.

For example, take Auburn and Holy Cross, which Georgia and Boston College couldn't do.

Georgia Tech beat Auburn, 15 to 0; Florida beat Auburn, 6 to 0; Georgetown beat Auburn, 6 to 0; Mississippi State beat Auburn, 6 to 0; Georgia Pre-Flight beat Auburn, 41 to 14—and then Auburns beats Georgia, 27 to 13.

The case of Holy Cross is even more complicated. Dartmouth beat Holy Cross, 17 to 6; Duquesne beat Holy Cross, 25 to 0; Syracuse beat Holy Cross, 19 to 14—then Holy Cross runs up 55 points against a Boston College team that had enough big, fast material to be ranked in front down the stretch.

Auburn and Holy Cross together had been beaten eight times and tied twice, yet they run up 82 points against two teams rated among the best in football—the two leading bowl people through most of the year.

Tulsa alone knew the peak, hurling the valley part week by week. Tulsa's consistency was one of the main features of the campaign. Coach Henry Frnka and his Tulsa cast turned out a brilliant all-season job.

The Big Shift.

One of the tangles is the big shift in form from early October to late November. It is almost impossible to keep any team keyed up through nine or ten hard games. Those squads which are brought along quickly are almost sure to crack later in November. Those which start slowly and lose a few games no longer carry any tension.

A big part of football is mental attitude—as Navy proved against Army, Holy Cross against Boston College, Georgia against Georgia Tech. Also Auburn against Georgia, Auburn, for example, was at least a touch-down better—as a team—against Georgia than it was against Florida.

The most improved teams in football during the closing weeks were Auburn, Navy and Holy Cross. They came further and faster from October form when none of them looked good. They turned from pygmies into giants.

The One-Defeat Bunch

In any rating two of the best in the land are Ohio State and Georgia.

Also, among those losing only a single game one must give more than light credit to Wisconsin (through a killing schedule), Tennessee and Georgia Tech. Don't forget that Georgia Tech beat Auburn, Notre Dame, Navy

Butts, Brown and Frnka Got Starts With 'Preps'

Don't look now, but those fellows who are sticking out in the middle like so many beer kegs are under the delusion they are sticking out their chests. And why are they trying to stick out their chests. Well, those guys are high school coaches, and they are as proud as a boy who has found his first bicycle under the untinsel pine tree in the living room on Christmas morning.

Those prep coaches are bursting with pride because three of their number are in the nation's limelight after having led college teams to sectional championships and two have landed their elevens in bowls. They have proved that high school coaches, some of them at least, have plenty on the ball and can go places if given the opportunity.

The three? You've guessed it. Wally Butts, of Georgia. Paul Brown, of Ohio State. Henry Frnka, of Tulsa University. Wally's Bulldogs won the Southeastern Conference championship—their first in 50 years of play—and landed in the Rose Bowl (or did you know?). Brown's Buckeyes captured the title in the tough Big Nine League and could have had a bowl bid if conference rules permitted. Frnka tutored Tulsa into its second straight Missouri Valley crown and into the Sugar Bowl. Furthermore the Hurricanes were the only major unbeaten, untied team in the nation.

Frnka was a high school coach in Texas before taking over the Tulsa reins. Brown set up one of the greatest records ever made while he was at the helm of the now famous Massillon, Ohio, High Club, before succeeding Francis Schmidt at Ohio State.

Butts, Georgia boy who starred at end while blocking 'em out for the great Phileas Smith at Mercer, served his apprenticeship at Madison A. & M. and Georgia Military College in Georgia before setting up an enviable record at Male High in Louisville which gained him his spot in Athens-town with the Bulldogs.

Butts, one of the best conditioners and fundametalists in the game today, was a success almost from the start. In 1929 his Madison A. & M. team downed Shorty Doyal's Boys' High outfit, 12 to 7, for the G. I. A. title. In 1930 the Madisons again took the state crown, this time beating the late Gabe Tolbert's Tech High Smithies in the title tilt. In 1931 Madison again whipped Boys' High, 12 to 7, though they did not win the championship.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

W. H. FRIERSON.

FRIERSON SALESMANAGER

Announcement has been made by the officials of the National Biscuit Company of the appointment of W. H. Frierson as district sales manager of the southeastern territory.

Mr. Frierson has been with the National Biscuit Company for 19 years in various capacities, coming here from Chicago territory, where he was assistant district sales manager. Mr. Frierson has served his company in Atlanta, Birmingham, Houston, Texas, and Chicago, and is thoroughly qualified for the new position that he now holds. He is a native of the south, having been born in Anderson, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Frierson and their 12-year-old son are making their home at 516 West Lyle avenue. The new sales manager states that he is indeed happy to be back in Atlanta, where he served 10 years ago.

6,000,000 GALLONS ALCOHOL

The California wine industry will be called upon to produce approximately 6,000,000 wine gallons of industrial alcohol within the next nine months, according to War Production Board officials in Washington, D. C.

The alcohol, which will probably be used in the synthetic rubber program and in the manufacture of smokeless gunpowder, will be distilled from blackstrap molasses brought in from Hawaii as ballast on returning ships. Approximately 15,000,000 gallons of this molasses will be made available to west coast fruit distilleries for conversion into alcohol between now and August, 1943.

By next week, according to the War Production Board, all fruit distilleries on the west coast will have received a letter offering them opportunity to participate in the program.

Condemnation Petition

Filed for Offices Here
Astor Merritt, special assistant United States attorney here, yesterday filed a petition of condemnation for office space on four floors of the Georgia Savings Bank building. The offices in question would be used by the National Housing Agency and the Federal Public Housing Authority which already occupies space in the building.

The petition set forth that this office space is "necessary for the prosecution of the war."

The offices designated in the petition are on the second, third, tenth and eleventh floors. Fourteen tenants are affected.

Labor Leaders

Debate Plan of United Front

AFL, CIO Committees Discuss Possibilities of Joint Movement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—AFL and CIO committees, returning to the peace table after a three year lapse, explored the possibility of a united labor movement today, reported a harmonious meeting, and agreed to continue their talks tomorrow.

Harry C. Bates, president of the Bricklayers' Union and chairman of the AFL peace committee, made this one-sentence announcement to newsmen at the end of a two-and-one-half hour session: "We had a very harmonious meeting this afternoon and we will hold another tomorrow at 10."

Philip Murray, CIO president, added: "I subscribe."

Both sides amiable. The conferees, apparently in an amiable frame of mind, but dodging interrogation, left immediately. Daniel J. Tobin, general president of the AFL, and Thomas J. Curran, dropped the casual comment, "We may have some news for you tomorrow," but whether he was indicating significant developments was purely speculative.

The CIO leadership, it was learned authoritatively, had prepared the outline of a peace plan, based on immediate merger of the two movements. The entire of each of the constituent AFL and CIO unions would be preserved, at least temporarily, and they would have proportional representation on the executive board. Jurisdictional conflicts would be worked out within the united organization.

Whether the conversations reached the point where this proposal was advanced and discussed could not be learned immediately, but informed CIO persons acknowledged that they were very sanguine about AFL acceptance of the plan.

As an alternative, the CIO was reported ready to suggest continued negotiations, with the establishment, meanwhile, of a joint committee to mediate jurisdictional disputes. Quarrels which were not adjusted by the joint committee would be arbitrated by the War Labor Board.

The meeting was held on the neutral ground of a downtown hotel, where the first peace negotiations were conducted in 1937, two years after the split. Conversations continued away in a small uncarpeted parlor furnished only with virtual essentials—a narrow table equipped with blotters, pads and pencils, and a few straight-backed chairs.

Representing the AFL, with Bates and Tobin, was William L. Hutcherson, president of the painters. With Murray were R. J. Thomas, president of the automobile workers, and Julius Emspak, of the electrical workers.

State Praised

By McLemore At Luncheon

By DUDLEY GLASS.

Henry McLemore, Georgia-born and-reared young man, who gained fame as a syndicated columnist, was guest speaker yesterday at the luncheon of the Civitan Club, held in the Atlanta Athletic Club. He went over in a big way.

McLemore, who received his first newspaper training on the old Georgian, gives the appearance of a timid person who has a crop of goosepimples from embarrassment at facing an audience. But that deceives nobody. Henry knows his stuff, including all the tricks.

Yesterday, back home, he paid high tribute to Georgia and her old red hills, the schools in which he had failed to achieve distinction, and the Georgia football team, whose defeat of Tech he witnessed with deep pain last Saturday because he had invested heavily in Coach Alexander's boys. He predicted Georgia would lick any team chosen as her opponents in the Rose Bowl.

As an entertaining speaker McLemore ranks with Fred Allen and the late lamented Will Rogers.

O. E. Collum Succumbs Here At Residence

Took an Active Part in Municipal Politics.

O. E. Collum, widely known in local political and civic circles and a large property owner, died last night at his residence, 561 Peoples street, S. W., following an extended illness.

Collum, generally known as Dr. Collum, was for many years in the real estate business and took an active part in municipal politics. He was at one time active in the affairs of "Tammany," a local political organization which held its meetings in a large Whitehall street apartment building which he owned.

He sold the greater portion of the property for what is now the John A. White Park to the city several years ago. The city developed the property and made a golf course out of it.

He is survived by his wife, a son, O. E. Collum Jr., and a brother, Ed Collum.

Funeral plans will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Committee Impatient

At Small Plants Group
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 1.—(AP)—A mounting impatience at the failure of the Small War Plants Corporation to swing into operation became evident on the part of the House Small Business Committee today after a score of Florida firms protested against their inability to receive recognition in their attempts to secure war contracts.

Chairman Wright Patman, Democrat, Texas, predicted that the committee "probably will make a very drastic report to the house unless more activity is shown in the near future."

HEADACHE from Anxiety
After hours of anxiety, a headache is the last straw. But it quickly yields to Capadine, which also soothes nerves and relieves tension. Capadine is a liquid. No waiting for it to dissolve before or after taking. So it's really quick. Use only as directed. 10c, 30c, 60c.

Use of Sirens

Is Requested by City Fire Unit

Trucks Can't Span Traffic Without Them, Says Chief Styron.

City council's board of firemasters last night voted unanimously to ask the council to authorize use of sirens on 39 pieces of fire apparatus, and set up a subcommittee from the police committee to attempt to save those divisions from draft inroads.

Use of sirens on fire, ambulance and police equipment was suspended about three months ago when sirens were reserved exclusively for air raid alarms. Fire Chief Styron told committee members it is impossible to get through congested areas without sirens, and urged the board to act.

The chief also pointed out that more than 100 members of the fire department are on leave of absence for various causes and that 17 vacancies in the department cannot be filled because of lack of qualified firemen. He urged some action to get exemptions for men regarded as essential to continued efficient functioning of the department.

Walter Stradley was elected a lieutenant to fill a vacancy in the department.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Augustus Maxwell, of the U. S. Army; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Parsons, of Tallahassee, and Mrs. Emory Morris, of Charlotte, N. C.; two brothers, James and Edward Maxwell, and a sister, Mrs. Joe Long.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg, the Rev. R. E. Chambers officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Navy Not Ready To Tell

Story of Pearl Harbor
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Secretary Knox indicated today the Navy still was not ready to tell the entire story of what happened at Pearl Harbor nearly a year ago.

In response to questions at a press conference, Knox said the Navy's first anniversary report on the December 7 sneak attack would come out of the Office of War Information along with other anniversary data. He added, however, that some information which might be of value to the enemy still was being withheld. He did not disclose the nature of this information.

One Less Meat

Bite Daily Is Asked At Athens

Special TO THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 1.—Mayor Bob McWhorter today called on Athenians to eat just "one less bite of meat a day" as their part in the "share the meat" campaign.

In explaining how he arrived at the estimate that "a bite a day" will fulfill Athens' part in the program, Mayor McWhorter said that the per capita consumption of meat for the past decade averaged about 143 pounds per person. Under the conservation plan each adult is allowed 130 pounds of meat a year.

On a daily basis this is a reduction of only four-sevenths of an ounce daily, just one good bite, according to the mayor.
